Exploring Human Genetics

For this lab, you will be working with a set of data from a genetic cross. The data is presented in a table below. You will be using this data to calculate the chi-square value and determine if the observed results are significantly different from the expected results.

Background:

The following table shows the results of a genetic cross between two heterozygous individuals (AaBb x AaBb). The traits being studied are flower color (A = purple, a = white) and flower shape (B = round, b = wrinkled).

Phenotype	Observed	Expected
Purple Round	15	15
Purple Wrinkled	10	10
White Round	10	10
White Wrinkled	5	5

Procedure:

1. Calculate the chi-square value for the data.

2. Determine the degrees of freedom.

3. Use a chi-square distribution table to find the p-value.

4. Interpret the results.

Collect data and complete chi square analysis
