Reflective Teaching Practices Elizabeth L. Keeling, 2012 Reflective teaching practice has been seen as a tool for continuous teacher improvement However before developing a novice teacher's capacity to effectively practice reflective teaching methods we must understand what a novice teacher thinks about and why they have those considerations about their teaching practice Thus this research sought to gain a rich description of how novice teachers in a traditional secondary setting reflect in their daily teaching practice This research explored how novice teachers describe their thinking as they prepare to teach and as they reflect back upon their teaching This research project sheds light on what novice teachers tend to reflect upon increasing the likelihood that mentors and preservice training programs may better support new teachers in developing reflective teaching practices Ultimately if as the literature suggests when reflective teachers are more aware of the impact of their decisions and actions then they can be more effective with their students and produce greater results To explore this a qualitative study involving anticipatory reflection observation and retrospective reflective interviews was conducted to explore how and what novice teachers reflected about in their teaching practice This study found that novice teachers reflect in the three areas that Jay and Johnson 2002 describe descriptive comparative and critical Thus suggesting that novice teachers are capable of reflecting at higher levels of complexity than previously noted in most of the stage theories in teacher development The results also support a non linear approach to teacher development and suggest a re conceptualization of Jay and Johnson s 2002 taxonomy All participants identified barriers to maintaining reflective teaching practices They also described that participating in this study had a positive impact on them and their practices They reinforced the importance of having ongoing opportunities for structured reflection time to reflect openly and the benefits of non evaluative feedback

Practice Theophilus Kofi Gokah, 2014 The content of this book is an important trajectory in teaching and learning It does not only explore teacher understanding and practice of reflective teaching and how teacher practitioners internalise the act in their teaching practice but adds to ongoing debates about the dynamic mix of teachers approach to teaching The reported study is exploratory based on small samples from two places Cardiff in UK and Madina in Ghana Its ethos is to compare any differences in understanding and practice of reflective teaching Drawing on qualitative exploratory case study the research found that teachers conceptualisation of reflective teaching in both cases was mixed Teachers in one case study seem to be aware of teaching evaluation as a concept in teaching and not reflective teaching Whether a lack of awareness in what reflective teaching is is synonymous to lack of knowledge is a matter of debate Reflective teaching no doubt is theorised in academic literature but its practice can be sticky in the classroom and other learning environments It is that patchy subject which remains the focus of various enquiries including this reported study and the concern of many education authorities After all debates about quality teaching and learning are often subsumed in these debates In order for any generalisations to be made from outcomes reported in this monograph may require larger samples and careful utilisation Reflective Teaching Beliefs and Practices of Secondary Agricultural Educators in Papua New Guinea Arnold Charles Parapi, 2000
