Mathematical Reasoning Lyn D. English, 2013-04-03 How we reason with mathematical ideas continues to be a fascinating and challenging topic of research particularly with the rapid and diverse developments in the field of cognitive science that have taken place in recent years Because it draws on multiple disciplines including psychology philosophy computer science linguistics and anthropology cognitive science provides rich scope for addressing issues that are at the core of mathematical learning Drawing upon the interdisciplinary nature of cognitive science this book presents a broadened perspective on mathematics and mathematical reasoning It represents a move away from the traditional notion of reasoning as abstract and disembodied to the contemporary view that it is embodied and imaginative From this perspective mathematical reasoning involves reasoning with structures that emerge from our bodily experiences as we interact with the environment these structures extend beyond finitary propositional representations Mathematical reasoning is imaginative in the sense that it utilizes a number of powerful illuminating devices that structure these concrete experiences and transform them into models for abstract thought These thinking tools analogy metaphor metonymy and imagery play an important role in mathematical reasoning as the chapters in this book demonstrate yet their potential for enhancing learning in the domain has received little recognition This book is an attempt to fill this void Drawing upon backgrounds in mathematics education educational psychology philosophy linguistics and cognitive science the chapter authors provide a rich and comprehensive analysis of mathematical reasoning New and exciting perspectives are presented on the nature of mathematics e g mind based mathematics on the array of powerful cognitive tools for reasoning e g analogy and metaphor and on the different ways these tools can facilitate mathematical reasoning Examples are drawn from the reasoning of the preschool child to that of the adult learner
