

The main workspace is divided into two primary sections. The upper section is a piano roll, where the vertical axis represents pitch and the horizontal axis represents time. It features several tracks with colored backgrounds (purple, blue, orange, green). The tracks contain musical notation, including notes and stems. The lower section is a mixer, showing a series of faders and knobs for each track, used for adjusting volume and other parameters. The interface is dark-themed with various colored highlights for tracks and controls.

This section contains the mixer and master output area. It features a series of vertical faders for each track, with a master fader at the bottom. The faders are color-coded to match the tracks in the piano roll above. To the right of the faders, there are various control knobs and buttons, including a solo button and a mute button for each track. The overall layout is clean and organized, typical of a professional DAW interface.
