Are all audit committee financial experts created equally?

Received (in revised form): 27 October 2008

Andrew J. Felo

is an Associate Professor of Accounting at The Pennsylvania State University Great Valley School of Graduate Professional Studies. His area of research includes a corporate governance, accounting ethics, and disclosure transparency. His work has been published in Accountancy and the Public Interest, Journal of Forensic Accounting, Journal of Business Ethics, and Strategic Finance.

Steven A. Solieri

is an Assistant Professor of Accounting at Queens College – City University of New York (CUNY) and is also a managing member of the accounting firm of Solieri & Solieri, CPAs, PLLC. Solieri's research interests include corporate and IT governance, the PCAOB, SEC and other regulatory issues, and restatements.

ABSTRACT There is little extant empirical research that classifies audit committee members based on expertise and independence simultaneously. Additionally, there is little empirical research where different types of gray audit committee members are considered separately. We find disclosure quality (as perceived by financial analysts) is positively related to the percentage of audit committee members who are affiliated with companies providing services to the firm and who are financial experts and negatively related to the percentage of audit committee members who are related to firm executives and who are financial experts. We also find that adding independent audit committee financial experts predates improvements in disclosure quality. As regulators around the world consider implementing audit committee requirements mandated in the United States, our results call into question disqualifying all gray directors from audit committees.

INTRODUCTION

Accounting scandals at companies such as Cendant and Sunbeam led to increased scrutiny of corporate audit committees in the United States. This increased scrutiny arose at least partially because in the words of then chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission

(SEC) Arthur Levitt, '... qualified, committed, independent, and tough-minded audit committees represent the most reliable guardians of the public interest'.¹ In February 1999, the Blue Ribbon Committee (BRC) on Improving the Effectiveness of Corporate Audit Committees issued its report detailing 10 recommendations for improving corporate audit committees. Among other changes, the BRC recommended that all audit committee members be independent of the firm and that at least one member possess accounting or financial management expertise. Although the NYSE and Nasdaq adopted these recommendations, accounting scandals at firms
