

- Domestic activities
- Domestic activities are the ones that will relate to the nation's income. They produce a net inflow of funds.
- These activities are divided into:
  - Primary sector: It includes activities like agriculture, mining, fishing etc.
  - Secondary sector: It includes manufacturing and extraction.
  - Tertiary sector: It includes activities like transport, banking, trading etc.
- All economic activities are profitable due to the fact that they make contributions to a country's earnings. However, every single one offers earnings to individuals, activities which give income to individuals or people who produce them are known as Market activities. Services may be rendered the form of pay, salary, wages or profit. Government services, production of goods for sale, and services performed for pay. These market activities do not provide the individual an income. They are done for self-consumption. The income, if given, resulting a flow of funds from the demand, a final printing stage is that flow finally.
- The non-market activities done by students are not paid, hence are included as national income. However, if this activity, like cooking, is performed for someone then it can be included.
- Education and skills of a person determines how he can work, as skilled people can perform better work than a person without any skills. Hence, generally, more the skills and knowledge the more the individual can earn wages.
