Growing technological developments in the automotive industry have expanded the use of electronic and electrical components due to growing awareness about clean energy usage

The manufacturing and export of electric vehicles is increasing in China at a rapid pace due to the focus of government bodies of several countries on providing advanced electric automotive solutions to their population.

KEY IMPACTING FACTORS

- Asia-Pacific is expected to lead the automotive DC-DC converters market as it comprises large number of electric vehicle manufacturers and a huge network of suppliers
- The initiatives by automotive sector in collaboration with the government bodies have increased, such as electrification of public transportation services
- The automotive DC-DC converters market is highly competitive with mainly global and regional players operating in the market
- The advancements in the electric vehicle segment and rising concerns related to automotive CO<sub>2</sub> emission are likely to amplify the reliance on automotive DC-DC converters
