INTRODUCTION: ANCIENT MYSTERIES, MODERN SECRETS

Sandra Blakely, Emory University

Classics and Anthropology share a long history of interaction.¹ Anthropologists of the nineteenth century brought a classical training to their work, and included ancient law, kinship and cities in their earliest studies.² The fields drifted apart in the early of the 20th century, the rift seems a response to various causes, including increasing specialization, the rise of fieldwork, the excesses of the Cambridge ritualists, and the perception that the study of the living would reduce the status of the Classical past.³ From the 1960s onward, however, the disciplinary divide has been crossed under various standards. Anglo-American scholars have pursued economic anthropology and Weberian historical sociology; the Paris school has built on the intellectual heritage of Durkheim, Saussure

¹ A full discussion of this long, complex interaction, and a complete bibliography of those who contribute to it, lie beyond the confines of this introduction. In this volume, Beidelman provides an anthropologist's perspective on the question, and Redfield a classicist's. Mauss 1908 provides an overview of the status of the two fields 100 years ago. ³ Gouldner 1965: 4 makes an eloquent response to these concerns.
