CHAPTER 1

MEAT INSPECTION PROCEDURES

The objectives of meat inspection programme are twofold:

- a. To ensure that only apparently healthy, physiologically normal animals are slaughtered for human consumption and that abnormal animals are separated and dealt with accordingly.
- b. To ensure that meat from animals is free from disease, wholesome and of no risk to human health.

These objectives are achieved by antemortem and postmortem inspection procedures and by hygienic dressing with minimum contamination. Whenever appropriate the Hazard Analysis Critical Control Point (HACCP) principles should be used: The inspection procedures should be appropriate to the spectrum and prevalence of diseases and defects present in the particular class of livestock being inspected using the principles of risk assessment.

ANTEMORTEM AND POST MORTEM INSPECTION OF FOOD ANIMALS

GENERAL PRINCIPLES

Antemortem Inspection

Some of the major objectives of antemortem inspection are as follows:

- to screen all animals destined to slaughter.
- to ensure that animals are properly rested and that proper clinical information, which will assist in the disease diagnosis and judgement, is obtained.
- to reduce contamination on the killing floor by separating the dirty animals and condemning the diseased animals if required by regulation.
- to ensure that injured animals or those with pain and suffering receive emergency slaughter and that animals are treated humanely.
- to identify reportable animal diseases to prevent killing floor contamination.
- to identify sick animals and those treated with antibiotics, chemotherapeutic agents, insecticides and pesticides.
- to require and ensure the cleaning and disinfection of trucks used to transport livestock.

Both sides of an animal should be examined at rest and in motion. Antemortem examination should be done within 24 hours of slaughter and repeated if slaughter has been delayed over a day.

Spread hogs and animals affected with extensive bruising or fractures require emergency slaughter. Animals showing clinical signs of disease should be held for veterinary examination and judgement. They are treated as "suspects" and should be segregated from the healthy animals. The disease and management history should be recorded and reported on an A/M inspection card. Other information of disposable income for many small farmers in developing countries. In fact, livestock are often the most important cash crop in many small holder mixed farming systems. Livestock ownership currently supports and sustains the livelihoods of rural poor who depend partially or fully on livestock for their income and or subsistence. Human population growth, increasing urbanization and rising incomes are predicted to double the demand for and production of livestock products in the developing countries over the next twenty years. The future holds great opportunities for animal production in developing countries. Animal Sourced Foods for Developing Economies addresses five major issues: 1 Food safety and nutritional status in developing world, 2 the contribution of animal origin foods in human health, 3 Production processes of animal foods along with their preservation strategies, 4 functional outcomes of animal derived foods and finally 5 strategies issues and policies to promote animal origin food consumption. Animal sourced food contain high biological value protein and important micronutrients required for optimal body functioning but are regarded as sources of fat that contribute to the intake of total and saturated fatty acids in diet. The quality of protein source has a direct influence on protein digestibility as a greater proportion of higher quality proteins is absorbed and becomes available for bodily functions. Animal foods has high quantity and quality of protein that includes a full complement of the essential amino acids in the right proportion. Land availability limits the expansion of livestock numbers in extensive production systems in most regions and the bulk of the increase in livestock production will come from increased productivity through intensification and a wider adoption of existing and new production and marketing technologies. The significant changes in the global consumption and demand for animal source foods along with increasing pressures on resources are having some important implications for the principal production systems. In this book contributors critically analyze and describe different aspects of animal s origin foods. Each chapter is dedicated to a specific type of food from animal source its nutritional significance preservation techniques processed products safety and quality aspects on conceptual framework. Special attention is given to explain current food safety scenario in developing countries and contribution of animal derived food in their dietary intake. Existing challenges regarding production processing and promotion of animal s origin foods are also addressed with possible solutions and strengthening approaches.
