CHAPTER 1

UNDERSTANDING HABITS

Introduction

What are habits? Why do we have them? How do they form? How can we change them? This chapter explores the science of habits and how they can be used to improve your life.

Why do we have habits?

Habits are automatic behaviors that we perform without thinking about them. They are formed through repetition and can be either good or bad.

How do habits form?

Habits are formed through a process called the habit loop. It consists of three parts: a cue, a routine, and a reward. The cue triggers the behavior, the routine is the behavior itself, and the reward is the positive outcome of the behavior.

How can we change our habits?

There are several ways to change our habits. One way is to identify the cues that trigger our habits and replace them with new cues. Another way is to replace the routine with a new one. A third way is to change the reward. For example, if you have a bad habit of eating junk food, you could replace it with a healthy snack that still provides a reward.
