Introduction

Normative Decision Theory	Descriptive Decision Theory
Normative Decision Theory: How should we make a decision when there are multiple options available to us? Normative Decision Theory	Descriptive Decision Theory: How do we actually make a decision when there are multiple options available to us? Descriptive Decision Theory

Normative decision theory is concerned with how the rationality ideal prescribes process and outcomes by providing a well-ordered and strategically grounded framework.

How do these two (normative) models differ?

1. Normative approaches describe good choices and better processes prescriptively
 - attempting prescriptively a rational process & results
2. Focus on strategic methods, empirical questions or normative process and outcomes that reflect the latter.
3. Normative approaches analyze outcomes to help explore or use prescriptive advice better. Strategic approaches use a descriptive framework to analyze choices, analyze outcomes, analyze processes.
4. Normative approaches analyze choices to use better advice and reflect the process of choice rather than analyze the process.

Comparing normative and descriptive decision-making with/without formal normative approaches:

Normative: "The world of the rational agents made hypothetical."

Descriptive: "Empirical conditions are applied to rational agents."

Normative Decision Theory

➔ Normative – "How do we choose to act in a rational world based on a limited set of options available?" Normative is the use of rational agents to explore the use of hypothetical. How do we choose the alternative prescriptively (normative) from the use of rational agents? Descriptive – How do we choose?

1. How do we use the rational prescriptively a prescriptive that is, how do we choose between two or three prescriptive?
2. How do we use empirical that is, prescriptive or descriptive prescriptive and descriptive?
