Speaking Truths with Film Bill Nichols, 2016-04-05 What issues of both form and content shape the documentary film? What role does visual evidence play in relation to a documentary's arguments about the world in which we live? Can a documentary be believed, and why or why not? How do documentaries abide by or subvert ethical expectations? Are mockumentaries a form of subversion? In what ways can the documentary be an aesthetic experience, and at the same time have political or social impact? And how can such impacts be empirically measured? Pioneering film scholar Bill Nichols investigates the ways in which documentaries strive for accuracy and truthfulness but simultaneously fabricate a form that shapes reality. Such films may rely on re-enactment to re-create the past, storytelling to provide satisfying narratives, and rhetorical figures such as metaphor and expressive forms such as irony to make a point. In many ways, documentaries are a fiction, unlike any other. With clarity and passion, Nichols offers close readings of several provocative documentaries, including Land without Bread, Restrepo, The Thin Blue Line, The Act of Killing, and Steve Jobs: The Man in the Machine, as part of an authoritative examination of the layered approaches and delicate ethical balance demanded of documentary filmmakers. Ethnographic film which combines documentary filming and anthropological research originated in the late 19th century. Early on anthropologists used film to record cultures. Documentary filmmakers in the early 20th century developed different strategies with technical developments aiding further advances. In the 1950s to 1970s intense debates among anthropologists, filmmakers, and artists, many of whom met regularly at conferences and festivals, took place on the methodology of ethnographic filmmaking. Their discussions were handed on by word of mouth but rarely recorded or published. In 2001 the pioneers of ethnographic film met in Göttingen and put together their recollections of the genre's Origins, thus giving an unusual insight into the development of ethnographic film.
