Writing First with Readings Laurie G. Kirszner, Stephen R. Mandell, 2005-09-28 Writing First teaches the basics of writing and grammar in the context of students own writing Along with a comprehensive treatment of the process of writing paragraphs and essays it helps students develop the fundamental writing skills they need to succeed in college and beyond By providing students with more help in the areas they most need it grammar ESL and high stakes test taking the third edition of Writing First better addresses the realities of the developmental writing course Handbook on Measurement, Assessment, and Evaluation in Higher Education Charles Secolsky, D. Brian Denison, 2017-07-31 In this valuable resource well known scholars present a detailed understanding of contemporary theories and practices in the fields of measurement assessment and evaluation with guidance on how to apply these ideas for the benefit of students and institutions Bringing together terminology analytical perspectives and methodological advances this second edition facilitates informed decision making while connecting the latest thinking in these methodological areas with actual practice in higher education This research handbook provides higher education administrators student affairs personnel institutional researchers and faculty with an integrated volume of theory method and application Educational Measurement Linda L. Cook, Mary J. Pitoniak, 2025 The fifth edition of Educational Measurement is a comprehensive handbook and textbook on the theories and techniques of the science of educational measurement It contains 22 chapters written by the leading scholars in educational measurement in the US Some chapters contain discussions of cutting edge research others document advancements in technology still others address issues related to the use of educational measurement to further the educational goals of a diverse and complex society The College Board Review, 1995 Computer-Based Instruction in Military Environments Robert J. Seidel, P.D. Weddle, 2012-12-06 This collection of papers is the result of a symposium sponsored by NATO s Defense Research Group Panel VIII in the Spring of 1985 The symposium came into being when it became obvious to the NATO countries that research development and utilization of advanced technologies for training was the best means of increasing both training effectiveness and efficiency This symposium was the second in a series of three devoted to training The series was structured to cover all aspects of training The first series addressed the value of training the second one dealt with the application of training technologies and the third and last of the series focused on academic issues concerned with the effect of prior learning on subsequent learning The fact that a major American publisher has determined that computer based instruction is the technology of greatest interest to the NATO community is not surprising Advances in microprocessor technology have revolutionized both how and where we train During this symposium there were a limited number of carefully chosen exhibits to demonstrate the various applications of computer based training techniques In the following papers you will find both a practical and scientific basis for the way current and future training and training systems should be designed applied and utilized We know that training must be done faster and more effectively Meeting the Test Scarvia B.

Controlling Public Education Kathryn A. McDermott, 1999 Most Americans believe that local school districts are the only means by which citizens may exercise control over public education Kathryn McDermott argues to the contrary that existing local institutions are no longer sufficient for achieving either equity or democratic governance Not only is local control inequitable it also fails to live up to its reputation for guaranteeing public participation and citizen influence Drawing upon democratic theory and the results of field research in New Haven Connecticut and three suburbs McDermott contends that our educational system can be made more democratic by centralizing control over funding while decentralizing most authority over schools to the level of schools themselves while enacting public school choice controlled for racial balance To many people in Connecticut and elsewhere the tension between equal opportunity for all students and local control of public education seems impossible to resolve In 1996 the Connecticut Supreme Court ruled in Sheff v O Neill that local control produces unconstitutional segregation of public schools Nearly all of the state s 169 towns operate their own public schools and like the towns they serve the schools are generally homogeneous with respect to race and socioeconomic class In the Sheff ruling the court declared that making school districts coterminous with town lines is the single most important factor contributing to the present concentration of racial and ethnic minorities in the Hartford public school system At the same time the court also acknowledged that the town based school system presently furthers the legitimate nonracial interests of permitting considerable local control and accountability in educational matters In Connecticut and elsewhere it has often seemed necessary to choose between local control and equity in public education and local control has almost always won McDermott argues that rather than seeing local control and equity as conflicting goals policymakers should regard them as equally important components of democracy in public education In her view a truly democratic system of education should both encourage citizen participation in school governance and contribute to the formation and maintenance of a social order in which equality of opportunity prevails over hierarchies of privilege Centralizing distribution of resources and using controlled choice to end racial isolation would provide greater equality of opportunity while decentralizing management of schools would expand citizen participation McDermott s conclusions break new ground in our understanding of local school governance itself and call into question the conventional wisdom about local participation These findings should interest those who study school governance and reform especially in an urban setting as well as policy makers administrators teachers students and citizens eager to improve their schools
