Design Of Formula Sae Suspension:

Design of Formula SAE Suspension Badih A. Jawad, Jason Baumann, 2002 Design and Analysis of Formula SAE Car Suspension Members Evan Drew Flickinger, 2014 The suspension system of a FSAE Formula Society of Automotive Engineers vehicle is a vital system with many functions that include providing vertical compliance so the wheels can follow the uneven road maintaining the wheels in the proper steer and camber attitudes to the road surface and reacting to the control forces produced by the tires acceleration braking and cornering The members that comprise the suspension are subjected to a variety of dynamic loading conditions it is imperative that they are designed properly to ensure the safety and performance of the vehicle The goal of this research is to develop a model for predicting the reaction forces in the suspension members based on the expected load scenarios the vehicle will undergo This model is compared to the current FSAE vehicle system and the design process is explained The limitations of this model are explored and future methodologies and improvement techniques are discussed Design and Integration of a Formula SAE Suspension System Patrick Drum, 2004

Handling-driven Design of Formula SAE Suspension ,2024 This thesis covers the design of a suspension system for a Formula SAE racecar with particular emphasis given to demonstration of proper roll rates for optimum handling This study will first overview the Formula SAE event as well as relevant parameters relating to suspension design It will then overview Pacejka tire modeling before examining and selecting a tire for the vehicle Physical suspension parameters will then be determined and programmed into a wireframe to generate a suspension architecture Handling balance of the vehicle will be evaluated for a sweep of roll couple distributions and ride and roll rates will be set for desired handling Finally the suspension will be simulated against the previous suspension design to evaluate the effectiveness of the proposed changes

The Design of an Innovative Automotive Suspension for Formula SAE Racing Applications Jared Michael Darius,2019 This thesis details an analytical approach to an innovative suspension system design for implementation to the Formula SAE collegiate competition It focuses specifically on design relating to geometry mathematical modeling energy element relationships and computer analysis and simulation to visualize system behavior The bond graph approach is utilized for a quarter car model to facilitate understanding of the analytical process then applied to a comparative analysis between two transverse half car models The second half car model contains an additional transverse linkage with a third damper and is compared against the baseline of the first half car model without the additional linkage The transverse third damper is an innovative design said to improve straight line tire contact during single sided disturbance help mitigate the adverse effects of squat and dive while not inhibiting the function of the anti roll bar in cornering capability Additional work is done investigating an optimization of suspension geometry through mathematical modeling in MATLAB of a four bar linkage system This code helps visualize the complex motion of the upright and calculates the wheel camber rate and variation to compare against tire data analysis to match maximum tire performance characteristics with camber angle
