Functional Skills Heather Gregson,Holly Poynton,Rebecca Tate,Louise Taylor,Matt Topping,2016-05 Skills for Life Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Public Accounts Committee,Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Committee of Public Accounts,2009 Although the Department for Innovation Universities and Skills and its predecessor the Department for Education and Skills spent around 5 billion on basic skills courses between 2001 and 2007 9 billion by 2011 large numbers of the adult working population of England remain functionally illiterate and innumerate In 2003 an estimated 75 per cent of the adult population of working age had numeracy skills below the level of a good pass at GCSE and 56 per cent had literacy skills below this level In July 2007 the Government announced a new objective to help 95 per cent of the adult population of working age achieve functional literacy and numeracy the level of skill generally needed to get by in life by 2020 Achieving this ambition would however only raise England to the standards currently achieved by the top 25 per cent of OECD member countries There are now separate targets for literacy and numeracy which focus on achieving the functional level of skill The new targets especially for numeracy will be challenging to meet and to date far less progress has been made tackling poor numeracy skills compared with literacy skills This is not helped by the low number of numeracy teachers available Many hard to reach people with poor literacy and numeracy skills come into contact with other government services such as Jobcentre Plus the Prison Service and the Probation Service More of these people are being encouraged to take up courses to improve their

literacy and numeracy skills but the percentage who participate is still relatively small The Department s biggest challenges are reaching people in the workplace who lack skills and getting employers to recognise the benefits of raising the skills of their workforce New Functional Skills English Level 1 - 10 Minute Tests (for 2020 & Beyond) CGP Books,2020
