value will transfer to those entitled to inherit them following the deceased's will or in the absence of a will according to the rules of intestate succession. Along the way the assets have to be identified, located, collected in and safeguarded. Debts owed by the deceased or arising from the death must likewise be identified and then met if need be with the proceeds from a sale of estate assets. The whole process by which this is done from the time of the death until the time of final distribution of the assets to those entitled to receive them is the subject of Administration of Estates. The topic has sometimes been neglected even within national legal systems and systematic comparative analysis at least in the English language is almost wholly lacking. The volume thus seeks to fill an important gap in the field of comparative succession law. Focusing on the legal systems of Europe and on countries which have been influenced by the European experience, the volume examines the law in Austria, England and Wales, France, Germany, Hungary, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Russia, Scotland and Spain as well as presenting chapters on Australia and New Zealand, Canada, China, South Africa, South America and the United States of America. The historical background to the main legal traditions in Europe is represented by chapters on Roman law, the customary law of early modern Continental Europe and English law before 1837.

Death and Live Feeds Jeehyeon Lee,2016 In 2014 the Uniform Law Commission approved the Uniform Fiduciary Access to Digital Assets Act UFADAA for enactment by states After an online user dies the act gives her fiduciary broad access to her digital assets such as email and social networking accounts in the name of asset neutrality the idea that digital assets should be treated like similar physical assets for the purposes of estate administration The application of such a concept to our online lives and deaths has significant implications for user privacy and relationships between users and internet service providers Over 20 states have already introduced bills based on the UFADAA This Note argues that an asset neutral approach to digital assets is fundamentally flawed particularly with respect to social networking and social media content Crucially digital assets are often linked to live real time feeds from other users accounts and thus provide access to others digital assets The Note proposes several changes to the UFADAA Most importantly in order to protect user privacy fiduciary access should be limited to only the particular decedent s digital assets and internet service providers should be required to implement this restriction

Laying Your Online Self to Rest Samantha Haworth,2015 Handling digital assets after death presents numerous practical legal and moral problems The Uniform Law Commission which produces the Uniform Probate Code and numerous other Model and Uniform laws has released a discussion draft of a Proposed Uniform Fiduciary Access to Digital Assets Act to address the disposition of digital assets at death This note will examine this Uniform Act and the problems it seeks to solve Part I explores the different types of digital assets and how courts are dealing with these assets in multiple types of litigation Part II discusses the legislative solutions currently in place and under construction for handling digital assets at death Part III analyzes the Proposed Uniform Fiduciary Access to Digital Assets Act and discuss its innovations and shortfalls Part IV analyzes what types of control fiduciaries should be allowed to exercise over digital assets This Note concludes with recommendations on how to best improve the Uniform Act

Digital Assets and Fiduciaries Naomi Cahn,Christina L. Kunz,Suzanne Brown Walsh,2015 This chapter addresses the appropriate treatment of a person s

digital life when the account holder can no longer manage it As the Internet becomes an increasingly important presence in our daily lives the law has a significant role to play in determining the management of digital assets upon the account holder's incapacity or death In the past people put hard copies of photos in albums listened to record albums and paid bills with a stamped envelope Today most people use the Internet to store photos listen to music and pay bills Yet few people have considered how to dispose of their digital assets This chapter explores the legal issues for trusts estates conservatorships and powers of attorney It addresses the importance of fiduciaries being able to manage an account holder's digital assets and the obstacles under federal and state law to a fiduciary assuming that role Finally it shows how the Uniform Fiduciary Access to Digital Assets Act provides a solution to ensure effectuation of the account holder's intent

Fiduciary Access to Digital Assets Faye Woodman, 2017 No jurisdiction in Canada has yet enacted comprehensive legislation regarding fiduciary access to the digital assets of an individual who has died become incapacitated or has appointed an attorney or other representative In August 2016 the Uniform Law Conference of Canada ULCC adopted a uniform act on fiduciary access to digital assets ULCC Uniform Act This paper discusses why there may be a need for legislation and then examines the most important elements of the ULCC Uniform Act The act which tends to favour fiduciary access and media neutrality is compared throughout the paper with the two American acts prepared by the American Uniform Law Commission The first American act was adopted in 2014 and then withdrawn due to concerns voiced by internet service providers and civil liberty groups regarding privacy issues and the other a revised version was subsequently adopted in 2015

The Stored Communications Act and Digital Assets David Horton, 2014 The story has become all too familiar Someone dies and her loved ones request the contents of her text email or social media accounts Perhaps they wish to preserve this vibrant electronic slice of the decedent's life Perhaps they are compelled in their grieving to sift through the minutiae of the decedent's final days Or perhaps they are merely trying to fulfill their duty as trustee executor or administrator to pay the decedent's bills and inventory her property However the decedent's Internet Service Provider ISP be it Facebook Yahoo or Microsoft refuses to comply As Naomi Cahn explains in her outstanding contribution to the Vanderbilt Law Review's Symposium on the Role of Federal Law in Private Wealth Transfer these ISPs are afraid of a byzantine federal statute from 1986 the Stored Communications Act SCA Section 2701 of the SCA criminalizes unauthorized access to electronic communications a seemingly nasty glitch for fiduciaries attempting to marshal a decedent's digital assets Section 2702 bars ISPs from disclosing a customer's private data without her lawful consent Citing the fact that the SCA predates the rise of email let alone the phenomenon of a valuable Twitter account Professor Cahn argues that the statute should not govern fiduciaries Alternatively assuming that the SCA does apply Professor Cahn discusses various ways around this obstacle including the Uniform Law Commission's draft Fiduciary Access to Digital Assets Act FADA which would clarify that fiduciaries generally enjoy the authorization and lawful consent necessary to acquire a decedent's online accounts This short invited reply takes a different route to the same destination It begins by offering a reading of the SCA that diverges slightly from Professor Cahn's However it uses that discussion to echo her critique of the SCA and bolster the case for the FADA
