

Computing Discounts Activity

Context

When purchasing items, it is often not clear how much the total price will be after discounts. For example, suppose a $100 item is discounted 10% and then 20% off the total price. The difference between the original price and the total price is called the savings. Alternatively, when two successive discounts are offered (percentages a and b), then, with appropriate use of order of operations, the resulting percentage is $a + b + ab$, which represents the percentage saved. For example, if the resulting percentage is 25%, then the savings percentage is 25%.

For example, suppose a $100 item is discounted 10% and then 20%.

10% of $100 is $10. Then $100 + $10 = $110 is the new price.

20% of $110 is $22. Then $110 + $22 = $132 is the new price.

The total savings is $32, so the savings percentage is 32%.

Alternatively, $10 + 20 + (10)(20) = 32$, which is the same result.

Item	Price	Discount	Discount %
Apple	$100.00	$10.00	10%
Banana	$110.00	$22.00	20%
Orange	$132.00	$26.40	20%
Apple	$158.40	$31.68	20%
Banana	$190.08	$38.02	20%

As this example shows, it is not always clear as they apply how much savings is realized. The following table shows how much savings is realized when the same price is discounted successively. For example, if the price is $100, then the savings is $25.

1. If the price is $100, then the savings is $10. If the price is $90, then the savings is $9. If the price is $81, then the savings is $8.10.
2. If the price is $100, then the savings is $10. If the price is $90, then the savings is $9. If the price is $81, then the savings is $8.10.
3. If the price is $100, then the savings is $10. If the price is $90, then the savings is $9. If the price is $81, then the savings is $8.10.
4. If the price is $100, then the savings is $10. If the price is $90, then the savings is $9. If the price is $81, then the savings is $8.10.
5. If the price is $100, then the savings is $10. If the price is $90, then the savings is $9. If the price is $81, then the savings is $8.10.
