Mothers, Warriors, Guardians of the Soul Geraldine Horan, 2003 This study shows that women involved in National Socialism in the years 1924-1934 developed and shaped a recognizable discourse which communicated and reflected their position and status within the NS movement The analysis is based on a variety of text types produced by members of NS women's organisations and includes official correspondence circulars reports pamphlets monographs and articles from NS women's journals It draws upon several areas of linguistic theory including feminist linguistics semantics pragmatics and discourse analysis and the salient features identified in the female discourse are placed within a sociolinguistic framework While previous research into the language of the NS system has largely ignored the possibility of a cohesive female discourse the study supports the idea that this discourse was dynamic and at times heterogeneous whilst also displaying many self-defining and self-referential features It is characterised by its ambiguities and apparent contradictions which expresses separateness and difference yet also solidarity with the NSDAP

Discourse Markers in Early Koine Greek Christopher J. Fresch, 2023-07-07 Using a cognitive functional linguistic framework and cross linguistic research on discourse markers Christopher J. Fresch investigates the use of five discourse markers in the documentary papyri of the third to first centuries BCE and the Greek translations of the Hebrew Bible Through this analysis Fresch proposes linguistically grounded descriptions for how each discourse marker uniquely functions to guide readers in how they process and comprehend the text Based on these descriptions he examines the instances of these discourse markers in the Greek translation of the Minor Prophets and how the translator used them to render the Hebrew text Fresch presents a picture of a translator who selected discourse markers based on their own understanding of the structure flow and meaning of the underlying Hebrew text Their use attests to a translator who was contextually aware and who desired to produce a translation in idiomatic Koine

(In)Appropriate Online Behavior Jenny Arendholz, 2013 This descriptive and comprehensive study on the discursive struggle over interpersonal relations in online message boards is located at the fascinating interface of pragmatics and computer mediated discourse a research area which has so far not attracted much scientific interest It sets out to shed light on the question how interpersonal relations are established managed and negotiated in online message boards by giving a valid overview of the entire panoply of interpersonal relations and their interrelations including both positively and negatively marked behavior With the first part of the book providing an in depth discussion and refinement of the pivotal theoretical positions of both fields of research students as well as professionals are reacquainted with the subject at hand Thus supplying a framework for the ensuing case study the empirical part displays the results of the analysis of 50 threads ca 300 000 words of a popular British message board

Pragmatic Organization of Discourse in the Languages of Europe Giuliano Bernini, Marcia L. Schwartz, 2011-12-22 The volume is a collection of papers reporting the results of investigations on the interaction of discourse and sentence structure in the languages of Europe. The subjects discussed in the book include morphosyntactic characteristics of spontaneous spoken texts, different patterns of word order in a pragmatic perspective, the coding of the pragmatic functions, topic and focus in sentences with non-canonical word orders, e.g. dislocations, clefts, the range of functions of verb-subject order in declarative clauses, and the notion of thematicity. Prosodic patterns of de-accenting of given information, deixis, and anaphora coding of definiteness and article systems. The book provides the empirical basis for the comparative survey of major phenomena found in the languages of Europe which have pragmatic relevance. Beside traditional areas of investigation at the interface between syntax and pragmatics, such as dislocations, new areas are explored, such as the prosody of given information. Data are considered within a functional-typological approach.

Intertextuality, intratextuality, and contrastivity emerge as pivotal concepts, illuminating the interconnectedness of texts across diverse cultural landscapes. With compelling insights and practical wisdom, the author argues persuasively for the essentiality of pragmatics and cultural semiotics in translating poetic and literary masterpieces. Whether you are a seasoned translator or a budding scholar, this book offers invaluable theoretical foundations and actionable guidance to navigate the captivating world of translation in poetry and literature.

General Extenders Maryann Overstreet, George Yule, 2021-09-02. General extenders are phrases like "or something" and "everything" and "things like that" and "stuff like that" and "and" and "so on." Although they are an everyday feature of spoken language, they are crucial in successful interpersonal communication and have multiple functions in discourse. They have so far gone virtually unnoticed in linguistics. This pioneering work provides a comprehensive description of this new linguistic category. It offers new insights into ongoing changes in contemporary English, the effect of grammaticalization, novel uses as associative plural markers, and indicators of intertextuality and the metapragmatic role of extenders in interaction. The forms and functions of general extenders are presented clearly and accessibly, enabling students to understand a number of different frameworks of analysis in discourse-pragmatic studies. From an applied perspective, the book presents a description of translation equivalents, an analysis of second language variation, and practical exercises for teaching second language learners of English.
