The Four Dimensions Of Service Management

The ITIL guiding principles

Guiding principle	Description
Focus on value	Everything that the organization does needs to create, directly or indirectly, a benefit to the organization. The focus of value principle encompasses every perspective, including the experience of customers and users. Do not just focus on specific activities, but also on the overall context in which they are performed. There is a risk that a great idea in the current context becomes a program, project, and people that can be used to create the desired outcome.
Start where you are	The current state should be investigated and assessed, taking into account what is already in use. Do not attempt to do everything at once. Start high, then gradually reduce complexity as you go. By organizing work into smaller, manageable activities that can be completed and completed in a timely manner, you start to create a change focus for each effort.
Progress iteratively with feedback	Work in small, frequent, and often visible increments of change that allow you to focus and re-focus, and to incorporate new information as it becomes available. Working together on small, frequent increments results in faster progress, more resilience to disruption, and increased likelihood of long-term success.
Collaborate and promote visibility	Working together across organizational boundaries, and local, global, and cross-functional, creates better outcomes.

Costs

Achieving desired outcomes requires resources (and therefore costs) which are associated with costs. Service providers help their customers to achieve outcomes and to design or take on parts of the associated costs and risks. On the other hand, service relationships can introduce new costs and risks, and in some cases, can negatively affect some of the intended outcomes after supporting others.

Value

Value is the difference between the expected and actual realization of the benefits, opportunities, costs, products, services, and experiences that should be realized to provide a desired value. It is a process, service, solution or other form to provide value to produce a useful outcome, experience, or a process is provided. Use the maximum number of value realization to maximize the opportunities. Always use customer-focused thinking to produce practical solutions that deliver results.
 Realization of all types, particularly intangible, requires that the best effort, knowledge, skills, and fully accepted and use technology to ensure whatever is a capable of human, interaction should only happen once and only once, value.
