92 metre frieze of the Voortrekker Monument in Pretoria one of the largest historical narratives in marble has been made the subject of a book The pictorial narrative of the Boer pioneers who conquered South Africa's interior during the Great Trek 1835-52 represents a crucial period of South Africa's past Conceptualising the frieze both reflected on and contributed to the country's socio-political debates in the 1930s and 1940s when it was made The book considers the active role the Monument played in the rise of Afrikaner nationalism and the development of apartheid as well as its place in post-apartheid heritage The frieze is unique in that it provides rare evidence of the complex processes followed in creating a major monument Based on unpublished documents drawings and models these processes are unfolded step by step from the earliest discussions of the purpose and content of the frieze through all the stages of its design to its shipping to post-war Italy to be copied into marble from Monte Altissimo up to its final installation in the Monument The book examines how visual representation transforms historical memory in what it chooses to recount and the forms in which it is depicted The second volume expands on the first by investigating each of the twenty seven scenes of the frieze in depth providing new insights into not only the frieze but also South Africa s history Fran ois van Schalkwyk of African Minds co publisher with De Gruyter writes From Memory to Marble is an open access monograph in the true sense of the word Both volumes of the digital version of the book are available in full and free of charge from the date of publication This approach to publishing democratizes access to the latest scholarly publications across the globe At the same time a book such as From Memory to Marble with its unique and exquisite photographs of the frieze as well as its wealth of reproduced archival materials demands reception of a more traditional kind that is on the printed page For this reason the book is likewise available in print as two separate volumes The printed and digital books should not be seen as separate incarnations each brings its own advantages working together to extend the reach and utility of From Memory to Marble to a range of interested readers For more material you can browse at Stanford s database Voortrekker Monumentality a digital archive Visual Impact Terence Wright,2024-11-01 From the office to domestic interiors to shops images surround us in modern life The internet has increased this visual onslaught exponentially Is there a systematic order to this seemingly endless array of pictures and depictions Looking at picture making traditions around the world the author demonstrates how schemes of depiction are ordered throughout all ages and across all cultures Drawing on a wide range of examples from painting and drawing to film photography and the Web Visual Impact analyzes the theory and practice of visual representation Pictures and images provide a cognitive context through which people can explore and understand their world They frame and shape daily life By considering the techniques and systems that inform visual displays the author examines how cultural values and traditions shape particular visual styles Drawing on the growing field of visual anthropology Visual Impact sets image making in an historical and global context and uses it as a window for exploring the human condition at a deeper level Anyone interested in the cultural role of art film the internet and interactive media will find this book an exciting and stimulating read Arts and Culture Benton,Lynne Blesz Vestal,Robert DiYanni,1998 This carefully written guide helps students better understand the material presented in the text by using chapter objectives chapter summaries key terms chapter review questions and self test questions which are page referenced to the text Arts in Health Daisy Fancourt,2017-06-22 Over the past few decades the use of the arts in health has blossomed What for many centuries was seen as a fringe activity is now being recognised as a field that has enormous potential for impacting positively on both individuals and societies However despite this surge in interest and activity there is still limited support available for people working in the field Although the number of practical training courses for artists is growing and more universities are establishing research groups most training activity occurs in either practice or research there are relatively few opportunities to gain parallel experience in both Arts in Health Designing and Researching Interventions provides a complete overview of how to go about undertaking research and practice in the field of arts in health It starts by exploring the context for arts in health interventions including the history of the use of arts in health and the theoretical and political developments that have laid the foundations for its flourishing It also considers what arts in health encompasses and the range of disciplines involved Part II examines how to design an arts in health intervention develop partnerships and find funding and considers the sensitivities around working in healthcare Part III considers the value of research for the field of arts in health and how to design and undertake a research project Finally part IV provides a fact file of arts in health research and practice showing how the arts can be applied and the benefits they can bring across a range of medical disciplines The book will be valuable for researchers practitioners healthcare professionals and those interested in learning more about the field

Teaching Creative Writing in Canada Darryl Whetter, 2024-12-04 Teaching Creative Writing in Canada maps the landscape of Creative Writing programmes across Canada. Canada's position both culturally and physically as a midpoint between the two major Anglophone influences on Creative Writing pedagogy, the UK and the USA, makes it a unique and relevant vantage for the study of contemporary Creative Writing pedagogy. Showcasing writer-professors from Canada's major Creative Writing programmes, the collection considers the climate crisis, contemporary workshop scepticism, curriculum design, programme management, prize culture, grants, and interdisciplinarity. Each chapter concludes with field-tested writing advice from many of Canada's most influential professors of fiction, poetry, creative nonfiction, and drama. This authoritative volume offers an important national perspective on contemporary and timeless issues in Creative Writing pedagogy and their varied treatment in Canada. It will be of valuable to other creative teachers and practitioners, those with an interest in teaching and learning a creative art, and anyone working on cultural and educational landscapes.

Decolonizing Place in Early Childhood Education Fikile Nxumalo, 2019-05-23 This book draws attention to the urgent need for early childhood education to critically encounter and pedagogically respond to the entanglements of environmentally damaged places, anti-blackness, and settler colonial legacies. Drawing from the author's multi-year participatory action research with educators and children in suburban settings, the book highlights Indigenous presences and land relations within ongoing settler colonialism as necessary yet often ignored aspects of environmental education. Chapters discuss topics such as geotheorizing in a capitalist society, absences of Black place relations, and unsettling, unquestioned Western assumptions about nature education. Rather than offer prescriptive solutions, this book works to broaden possibilities and bolster the conversation among teachers and scholars concerned with early years environmental education.

Aboriginal Art and Australian Society Laura Fisher, 2016-05-30 This book is an investigation of the way the Aboriginal art phenomenon has been entangled with Australian society's negotiation of Indigenous people's status within the nation. Through critical reflection on Aboriginal art's idiosyncrasies as a fine arts movement, its vexed relationship with money, and its mediation of the politics of identity and recognition, this study illuminates the mutability of Aboriginal art's meanings in different settings. It reveals that this mutability is a consequence of the fact that a range of governmental, activist, and civil society projects have appropriated the art's vitality and metonymic power in national public culture, and that Aboriginal art is as much a phenomenon of visual and commercial culture as it is an art movement. Throughout these examinations, Fisher traces the utopian and dystopian currents of thought that have crystallised around the Aboriginal art movement and which manifest the ethical conundrums that underpin the settler state condition.

Music Education in Times of Eco-Social Crisis Tawnya D. Smith, 2025-12-24 This book explores how music education can remain relevant in an era of multiple environmental crises that threaten human thriving and life on a planetary scale. The author argues that music educators must join with educators in other fields to deconstruct unsustainable ideologies and replace them with sustainable curricular practices while focusing music learning on the project of fostering hope healing resilience justice and community cohesion Drawing on the perspectives of radical ecopsychology ecojustice and ecofeminism this book considers how music education can address the emotional and spiritual dimensions of coping with environmental crises Offering a critique of the compartmentalized nature of current educational practices and envisioning a new approach to music learning that can help teachers and students heal the bifurcations between the psyche nature and society at the root of the environmental crises this book is essential reading for scholars of music and arts education as well as graduate students and educators
