Sustainable States Jon B. Alterman, Natasha Hall, Will Todman, 2021-10-13 The importance of environmentally sustainable public utilities in the Middle East is an improbable topic for a Washington think tank study Yet many countries in the Middle East face serious challenges providing utilities in any manner to their populations and the failure to do so is an increasing flashpoint for public dissatisfaction This study finds that providing more environmentally sustainable services in the Middle East would be an effective way to address many citizens grievances which go beyond the reliability of those services It would also help ameliorate deep dissatisfaction with the quality of governance and help build trust between citizens and their governments This study examines three sectors power water and sanitation and solid waste in Jordan Lebanon and Tunisia While the three countries are different in many ways each faces increasing challenges providing services to their citizens Providing these services in an environmentally sustainable way would also crucially increase each country s resilience and diminish their vulnerability in a chronically unstable region

When Should Law Forgive? Martha Minow, 2019-09-24 Martha Minow is a voice of moral clarity a lawyer arguing for forgiveness a scholar arguing for evidence a person arguing for compassion Jill Lepore author of These Truths In an age increasingly defined by accusation and resentment Martha Minow makes an eloquent deeply researched argument in favor of strengthening the role of forgiveness in the administration of law Through three case studies Minow addresses such foundational issues as Who has the right to forgive Who should be forgiven And under what terms The result is as lucid as it is compassionate A compelling study of the mechanisms of justice by one of this country's foremost legal experts

Climate Change Epistemologies in Southern Africa Jörn Ahrens, Ernst Halbmayr, 2023-05-26 This book investigates the social and cultural dimensions of climate change in Southern Africa focusing on how knowledge about climate change is conceived and conveyed Despite contributing very little to the global production of emissions the African continent looks set to be the hardest hit by climate change Adopting a decolonial perspective this book argues that knowledge and discourse about climate change has largely disregarded African epistemologies leading to inequalities in knowledge systems Only by considering regionally specific forms of conceptualizing perceiving and responding to climate change can these global problems be tackled First exploring African epistemologies of climate change the book then goes on to the social impacts of climate change matters of climate justice and finally institutional change and adaptation Providing important insights into the social and cultural perception and communication of climate change in Africa this book will be of interest to researchers from across the fields of African studies sociology anthropology philosophy political science climate change and geography
