Student Exploration: Human Evolution - Skull Analysis

Prior Knowledge Questions

- Label one of the skulls below as human and the other as a chimpanzee skull.

Human

Chimpanzee

- What features did you use to identify which skull was human and which was chimpanzee?

The shape of the cranial cavity and jaw, as well as the front of the mouth. Also because of the shape of the teeth and placement of tooth sockets, and jaw line.

In 1924, a fossilized skull that looked very similar to a chimp skull was discovered. But the skull most definitely did not belong to a chimp. The location of the foramen magnum—a hole in the skull where the spinal cord exits—indicated that the individual was bipedal, or walked on two legs. This fossil was some of the earliest evidence of human evolution.

- Examine the front view of the homo sapiens (modern human) skull. Examine the same view of the Pan troglodytes (chimp) skull.

How do the skulls compare?

The chimp skull is more elongated. Also the teeth are spaced very differently.

Now, examine the bottom view of the two skulls. How do they compare?

Interpretation: Skulls, even from the same species, use many a wide variety of shapes and sizes. To compare skulls, scientists use measurements of certain features to calculate indices. An index is a ratio of one measurement to another.

An important index for measuring hominid skulls is the cephalic index. This index indicates the position of the foramen magnum in the base of the skull. The cephalic index can indicate whether a hominid species was bipedal or not.

Question: How does the location of the foramen magnum indicate if a species was bipedal?

- Measure: Examine the bottom view. To determine the cephalic index for humans and chimps, follow the steps below and complete the table.
