

Investigative task chapter 7- smoking

Researcher John Lee conducted a cross-sectional study of 10000 people. It shows that the number of cigarettes smoked per adult per year and the rate of chronic lung disease (including heart disease) tend to be related. The 10,000 people that were surveyed are shown in the table below. The table is a generalisation of the relationship between cigarette consumption and CHD death rates, and is not meant to represent any particular population. Do you think the results are statistically significant?

The association between cigarette consumption and CHD appears to increase with a greater total years and years. The association between a greater consumption per cigarette pack and CHD mortality appears to be stronger in 1980, which is why at the beginning of the 1980s the rate of CHD mortality increased rapidly for CHD mortality. Deaths per cigarette pack smoked in 1980 (1980 cigarette consumption rate per year) is 1.00. The rate in 1980 is 1.00.

What does the graph tell you about the relationship between cigarette consumption and CHD mortality in 1980? The graph shows a positive linear relationship. The rate of CHD mortality increases as the amount of cigarette consumption increases. The rate of CHD mortality is 1.00 in 1980.
