Kidding Around Alexander N. Howe, Wynn Yarbrough, 2014-01-16 Kidding Around The Child in Film and Media is a collection of essays generated by a conference of the same title held at the University of the District of Columbia. The works gathered examine a variety of children's media including texts produced for children e.g. children's books, cartoons, animated films, as well as texts about children e.g. feature length films, literature, playground architecture, parenting guides. The primary goal of Kidding Around is to analyze and contextualize contested representations of childhood and children in various twentieth and twenty first century media while accounting for the politics of these narratives. Each of the essays gathered offers a critical history of the very notion of childhood at the same time as it analyzes exemplary children's texts from the twentieth and twenty first centuries. These chapters depart from various methodological approaches including psychoanalytic, sociological, ecological, and historical perspectives, offering the reader numerous productive approaches for analyzing the moments of cultural conflict and impasse found within the primary works studied. Despite the fact that today children are one of the most coveted demographics in marketing and viewership, academic work on children's media and children in media is just beginning. Kidding Around assembles experts from this inchoate field, opening discussion to traditional and non-traditional children's texts.

Noel Streatfeild Nancy Lyman Huse, 1994. In this comprehensive analysis of a woman hailed by her fellow Britons as a National Monument, Nancy Huse argues that Streatfeild's work challenges the status of girls' books described in most criticism as ephemeral or constituting a category separate from great books. Huse attributes the appeal of Streatfeild's books to their contemporary themes and traditional values and finds that in exploring the tensions of heredity and environment, Streatfeild anticipated many contemporary questions about the role of women, the structure of the family, and the implications of the class system. In particular, Huse notes Streatfeild in both her children's and adult novels used the poverty of women and their work in the domestic sphere to link the public with the private worlds shaping children. Streatfeild's conservative upbringing, rebellious youth, and complex life-long relationship with her family provided material for her novels. According to Huse, Streatfeild developed a conscious perspective on childhood that she used to defend child-adult boundaries while sharpening story forms. At the same time, Huse contends her multifaceted talent admitted new subjects, character types, themes, and information into the children's book because she assumed competence and intelligent curiosity as the basis of children's contributions to the family and to society. In this vibrant portrait of the life and work of such an innovative children's writer, Huse suggests some meaningful ways to evaluate the family novel, the role of a children's novelist in preserving and constructing a historical record, and the implications of formulaic patterns that derive from female experience.

White Boots Noel Streatfeild, 1994 Can the friendship between Harriet, who skates for fun, and Lalla Moore, future world champion, survive the threat from Lalla's formidable Aunt Claudia? When Harriet needs to recover after a long illness, her doctor tells her to take up skating. Although not good at it, she admires the children like Lalla Moore in the centre of the rink who seem to be able to do anything they want on the ice. And when it turns out that Lalla's father and Harriet's father were at school together and they can be friends, her happiness is complete. But Lalla is only happy when she is the best, and when Harriet begins to compete on equal terms, their friendship looks like falling apart.
