Attendance System Ramin Khalifa Wali,2023 RFID Radio Frequency identification attendance system is a technology based procedure that uses RFID cards or tags to record and track attendance in a classroom setting It allows for efficient and quick attendance taking for educators We take attendance because we know that being present in class is important for student progress which means we are holding students accountable The usual way of keeping track of attendance however has its own set of challenges One major issue is that it can be quite time consuming especially when dealing with large classes Additionally there is a risk of errors such as students being mistakenly marked as absent or present Finally there are instances where teachers may forget to take attendance or when class is dismissed some students might have already left and have no more time to take attendance Therefore this project proposes a system that intends to assist teachers with reclaiming this amount of time for each class which will be determined by the student s ID or fingerprint as they enter the classroom As a result attendance taking will be more efficient Once the design is completed there will be challenges that have to be dealt with including some issues like students passing by the classroom to make the system detect the ID without entering the class and if a friend brings the RFID tag of a student also another issue Meanwhile if a student leaves the class soon and will not get back to the class RFID-based Location Tracking System Using a Peer-to-peer Network Architecture Chun Pan Hui,2015 Careers Centre Student Tracking System David Rhys Johnston,1993 How Do We Design and Develop a Runnable 'student Tracking System' Prototype Aminah Gina Alleyne,2000 RFID Based Student Attendance System Mohsin Ali,2011 Towards Better Student Tracking Systems ,1997 The Further Education FE sector in the United Kingdom has devoted time energy and resources in recent years to the development and improvement of information systems known as management information systems This report presents the findings of a research project on the use of management information systems in student tracking The project was established and funded by the Further Education Development Agency FEDA and the Further Education Funding Council FEFC in response to demand from colleges in the FE sector The project sought to develop a model that colleges could use when specifying software to track students progress The model accounts for student mobility prior learning credit accumulation and transfer and records of achievement The report also offers recommendations for sector institutions the FEFC software suppliers and FEDA Proposals for the next phase of the project are outlined The research reflects the move from gathering global information about student populations toward gathering information about and for individuals Ten figures are included Appendices contain a list of project team members case studies a bibliography of 15 references and a glossary LMI Student Tracking: New Techniques, New Demands Peter Ewell, 1995-12-18 Longitudinal student tracking systems now serve a multitude of masters Growing accountability demands from states accreditors and the federal government prominently feature such measures as persistence and graduate rates and time to degree At the same time resource shortfalls are driving institutions and state higher education systems to examine their operations more carefully in order to achieve greater coherence and efficiency understanding and monitoring student flow is a prominent part of this effort In light of these developments student tracking has come of age This volume of New Directions for Institutional Research describes important changes in the requirements for student tracking data bases and examines the expanding technical possibilities provided by statewide administrative data bases and by the availability of greatly enhanced data manipulation and statistical tools for constructing and analyzing longitudinal data files This is the 87th issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Institutional Research For more information on the series please see the Journals and Periodicals page A Real-time Tracking System Using RFID in Mecca Nezar Amer Alnizari, 2011
