Jarrell,1981 The development of a model to estimate 30 and 50 kt wind probabilities from tropical cyclone forecasts is described Some examples to illustrate the use of probabilities are discussed The model is based on position forecast errors which are used to determine the probability of a cyclone occupying a particular geographical position and on wind profile errors Wind profile errors consist of errors in the forecast maximum wind and errors in the forecast radius of 30 and 50 kt winds The profile errors are used to estimate the probability of 30 an 50 kt winds occurring at a point given that the cyclone occupies a particular position These position and wind probability elements are combined by using an assumption of independence which is supported by correlation coefficients The model which includes features of the earlier strike probability model is tested on independent data Test results are shown to illustrate good agreement between forecast probability and the frequency of occurrence of 30 and 50 kt winds Author Bulletin ,2002 Fluid Mechanics, Hydraulics, Hydrology and Water Resources for Civil Engineers Amithirigala Widhanelage Jayawardena,2021-01-27 One of the core areas of study in civil engineering concerns water that encompasses fluid mechanics hydraulics and hydrology Fluid mechanics provide the mathematical and scientific basis for hydraulics and hydrology that also have added empirical and practical contents The knowledge contained in these three subjects is necessary for the optimal and equitable management of this precious resource that is not always available when and where it is needed sometimes with conflicting demands The objective of Fluid Mechanics Hydraulics Hydrology and Water Resources for Civil Engineers is to assimilate these core study areas into a single source of knowledge The contents highlight the theory and applications supplemented with worked examples and also include comprehensive references for follow up studies The primary readership is civil engineering students who would normally go through these core subject areas sequentially spread over the duration of their studies It is also a reference for practicing civil engineers in the water sector to refresh and update their skills
