

Radioactive Decay: A Sweet Simulation of Half-Life

INTRODUCTION

In the following procedure you will learn how to use M&M's candies to simulate radioactive decay. You will learn how to determine the half-life of a substance.

Procedure:

1. Obtain your instructor's assigned portion of the material and the starting number of M&M's candies for the activity. Record the number of candies that you start with in the table in column 1. You will remove candies that you start with (represented by the red and yellow M&M's candies).

2. Place your number of candies that you start with in a container. Draw the candies that you remove from the "red" candies and the yellow candies. Record the number of candies that you remove in column 2. The number of candies that you start with minus the number of candies that you remove is the number of candies that you have left.

3. Repeat the procedure for a second trial. Record the number of candies that you start with in column 1. Record the number of candies that you remove in column 2. Record the number of candies that you have left in column 3.

4. Continue the procedure for a third trial. Record the number of candies that you start with in column 1.
