Business Teamwork and Collaboration: Managing Diverse Teams, 2021-12-06 Seminar paper from the year 2021 in the subject Leadership and Human Resources Miscellaneous grade 1.0 Hult International Business School course Business Teamwork and Collaboration language English abstract More diversity automatically results in better performance. This assumption is a mostly incorrect contemplation commonly assumed by managers and organisations. In fact, the increasing globalisation of markets and the alignment of diverse teams lead to changes in business operations. Stakeholders originate from countries that are culturally different and have contrasting values, resulting in intercultural overlap situations that affect management practices, individual work attitudes, communication and negotiation. New kinds of difficulties thus arise that need to be addressed appropriately. Most diversity measures in companies tend to focus on how businesses can become more diverse instead of managing this diversity, so-called intercultural management, which necessitates whole other procedures and metrics. This literature review defines intercultural management, demonstrates leadership styles that should be used by executives who attempt to counteract the above-mentioned problems, as well as examine strategies of interculturality in the leadership process.

Servant-Leadership Across Cultures: Harnessing the Strengths of the World's Most Powerful Management Philosophy Fons Trompenaars, Ed Voerman, 2010-01-01 We are all under new pressure to produce more for less money and in less time. Ultimately, this cannot be done unless bosses are able to, in service of their organization, bring out the best in their people. That is the essence of servant leadership, the management philosophy originally outlined by organizational expert Robert Greenleaf in the 1970s. It is a philosophy whose time has truly come. The mission statement of TDIndustries, a regular on Fortune's list of 100 Best Companies to Work for in America, prioritizes intense people development efforts, including substantial training budgets. When an error at Motorola caused 100,000 in damages to equipment, no heads rolled; instead, the responsible employee was encouraged to develop a system based on what he'd learned. All told, Motorola saved more than a million dollars. When Sematech, the International Institute for Semiconductors, joined with competitors like Intel, AMD, Siemens and Sony, the result was smarter and better business for all via shared innovation and communication. For such progressive companies, mere institutional power is no longer enough. Their secret is the empowerment that servant leadership provides, and it can make the difference between the success of your organization and its downfall. With Servant Leadership Across Cultures, you'll come to understand how and why doing the right thing pays off for everyone, not just for your business partners, but for the world.
