Chris Yessios, 2006-01-01 Material published in this edition is compiled by Dr Chris Yessios While no attempt was made to group the articles since each is quite unique they can be viewed under a number of thematic categories There are at least 7 articles that deal more or less directly with the use of digital tools for the generation of innovative forms Another 8 articles present specific building designs and 5 more present specific urban design schemes The common denominator for all is the use of the digital tools to create forms that are distinctly different from traditional forms A group of some 6 papers specifically discusses and compares digital versus analogue methodologies In all cases the former are more persuasive Fabrication or computer aided manufacturing CAM is represented by at least 3 papers while hints of digital fabrication can be found in a number of other papers as well 6 articles are directly concerned with education either the theoretical ties of digital design to ancient principals or how to develop particular skills The only paper from a high school elaborates on this topic Finally there are 5 articles that cannot be grouped with the above categories but would fit in a category possibly labeled miscellaneous theories For example Transforming Habit and Interpreting Babel would belong to such a category
