

(or, we can manage to forget about) the worry about the status of stylistic categories. They have become stages of the spirit diversified into the major art forms.

Section I, architecture, appears as symbolic, classic and romantic—the first mode paradigmatic, the other two historical variations of the paradigm. Section II, sculpture, not having a symbolic stage apparently, is the classic paradigm, whilst in Section III we switch from seeing different arts (i.e. architecture and sculpture) as paradigms for the symbolic and the classical respectively, to seeing the third mode, the romantic, as itself paradigmatic for painting, music and poetry. Poetry here has the last word in that its three subdivisions, epic, lyric and dramatic, perfectly exemplify the dialectic combination of the first two into the third.

A word on the translation. It is outstandingly good. I didn't stumble, except once, on p. 242, where 'talk over' turned out, on transliterating it into German, to be a mistranslation for 'persuade'. It is a tribute to Sir Malcolm Knox's fluency that, whilst knowing that 1200 pages could hardly fail to harbour misprints, I noticed only one (p. 585 'dreadul' for 'dreadful').

The translator's notes are, on the whole, informative and very welcome in view of our not living in Hegel's time and being not at all familiar with the then topicality of his references to contemporary books and exhibitions. There is the occasional let-down. The note on p. 283, à propos Hegel's remark that only middle and old age can bring to perfection the mature work of art, reads: 'One of Hegel's more hazardous generalizations . . .' If the generalizing weren't more hazardous than that, fewer scholars would, I suggest, have turned away from Hegel in something approaching disgust. And then there is the note on p. 234, taking up Hegel's remark that science requires a special kind of education, 'not a universal moving power in the human breast'. The note: 'It is a pity that this sentence, so incontestably true, has been so unpalatable to those who have been busy at enlarging and multiplying universities in this country in recent years.' Oh, Sir Malcolm!

The Ambivalence of Bernard Mandeville

By Hector Monro

Clarendon Press: Oxford University Press, 1975, 283 pp., £10.50

The last decade has seen a sudden awakening of interest in Mandeville. There have been editions of The Fable in, at least, England, America, and Germany. And contemporary with Monro's study there appears a collection from The Hague edited by Irwin Primer: but that is a collection of papers primarily by letterists and historians. Monro's book, however, is something quite out of the ordinary. One cannot deny that Monro is a scholar, for his book abounds in scholarship, drawing not only upon the full range of Mandeville's texts and discrepancies between one edition and another, while it also contains a bibliography covering not only the works of Mandeville and his contemporaries, but also some of the more important articles to be published these last fifty years,

Mind, Body, Motion, Matter Mary Helen McMurrin, Alison Conway, 2016-01-01 Mind Body Motion Matter investigates the relationship between the eighteenth century's two predominant approaches to the natural world mechanistic materialism and vitalism in the works of leading British and French writers such as Daniel Defoe William Hogarth Laurence Sterne the third Earl of Shaftesbury and Denis Diderot Focusing on embodied experience and the materialization of thought in poetry novels art and religion the literary scholars in this collection offer new and intriguing readings of these canonical authors Informed by contemporary currents such as new materialism cognitive studies media theory and post secularism their essays demonstrate the volatility of the core ideas opened up by materialism and the possibilities of an aesthetic vitalism of form

Perceptions of Retailing in Early Modern England Nancy Cox, Karin Dannehl, 2017-05-15 Whilst there has been much recent scholarly work on retailing during the early modern period less is known about how people at the time perceived retailing both as onlookers artists and commentators and as participants Centred on the general theme of perceptions the authors address this gap in our knowledge by looking at a different aspect of consumption They focus on two ancillary themes the first is location and how contemporaries perceived the settlements in which there were shops the other is distance Pictures prints novels diaries and promotional literature of the tradespeople themselves provide much of the evidence Many of these sources are not new to historians but they have not been scrutinized and analysed with the questions in mind that are posed here The methodology to be employed has been developed by Nancy Cox over the last decade and is used successfully in her book The Complete Tradesman and in the compilation of the forthcoming Dictionary of Traded Goods
