

CHAPTER 10

THE TEACHING CHURCH

In the previous lessons, you learned about the Church as the People of God, the Bride of Christ and the Mystical Body of Christ. Another important role of the Church is that of a teacher.

Jesus promised to send the Holy Spirit to the apostles and that the Spirit “would lead them to all truth,” and “would remind them of everything He had taught them” (John 14:26).

Jesus promised that the Holy Spirit would guarantee that the truth would be proclaimed faithfully until the end of time. But how would that happen? Do we simply need to say a prayer to the Holy Spirit, pick up a Bible, and whatever we think about it will be guaranteed to be true? It's not quite that easy.

It is important to pray to the Holy Spirit and read the Bible, but that doesn't make us unable to make a mistake. Jesus gave this guarantee of the truth to His Church. He made the promise specifically to the apostles and to their successors the bishops, and many times the Church (not individual Christians) is spoken of as having authority. (For one example, see Matthew 18:15-18).

Jesus gave us the Church as a teacher. At Pentecost the Church received the Holy Spirit, Who stays with the Church. The Church is made up of human beings, of course, so it does not mean that the Church is perfect, or that everything you ever hear from a priest or even a bishop will be completely true.

WHAT IT DOES MEAN IS THAT THE OFFICIAL TEACHING OF THE CATHOLIC CHURCH WILL NOT CONTAIN ERRORS.

The Church has a role as a teacher. This teaching role of the Catholic Church is called the Magisterium. In ancient Rome, a magister was a master teacher. This teaching role belongs mainly to the bishops.

How can we know that the Church's teaching is without error? Most importantly, because Jesus said it would be, and He gave His Church a secret weapon – the Holy Spirit.
