Sick Schools David V. Anderson, 2020-01-10 Who's afraid of for-profit education? Those who work in non-profit or government-owned and operated schools. Many parents and other stakeholders have been made fearful by this education establishment. What's more important to humans: nutrition or education? Nutrition is more important because it is the prerequisite for other human activities, including education. What organizations provide food, and who pays for the food? Food is provided by for-profit farmers, for-profit processors, for-profit wholesalers, and for-profit retailers. Most food is purchased with the consumer's own money, but a significant amount is purchased by low-income individuals using food stamps. Why can't education be provided similarly using education stamps? We trust for-profit enterprises to provide our food. Why can't we trust for-profit enterprises to provide K-12 education? Fear-mongers have frightened us and made us into gullible, compliant socialists who despise commercial activities in education. Go to the supermarket and ponder its marvelous array of foods, and then contemplate how a for-profit K-12 education sector would please and amaze its customers. Popular Science, 2005-09. Popular Science gives our readers the information and tools to improve their technology and their world. In addition, the author provides a full range of concrete developmental activities that encourage future teachers to make math make sense for themselves as well as for their students. Believing that teachers who are comfortable with mathematics develop learners who are comfortable with mathematics, this author empowers preservice pre-K-4 teachers to teach math confidently by laying a solid foundation of math concepts and building on that foundation with engaging, meaningful, standards-based teaching methods. Integrated in this unique combined approach to teaching mathematics is a thorough discussion of math manipulatives as well as the use of technology, computer, and otherwise to assist today's mathematics teacher. Technologies of Learning Bert De Munck,2007 The importance of training and education is on the increase While the production of human capital is seen as a motor for a competitive economy skills and expertise proof to be necessary for social mobility Remarkably in conceiving modern forms of apprenticeship several mechanisms from the acien regime seem to return The difference between public and private initiative is disappearing education and training is being confused and in order to acquire generic skills as flexibility communicability self rule creativity and so on youngsters have to learn in context Even for maths scholars now talk of situated learning Before the advent of a formal schooling system training took place on the shop floor under the roof of a master The apprentice not only worked but also lived in his master s house and was thus trained and educated at the same time In cities this system was formally complemented by an official apprenticeship system prescribing a minimum term to serve and an obligatory masterpiece for those who wanted to become masters themselves Traditionally historians see this as an archaic and backward way of training yet this book s aim is to show that is was instead a very flexible and dynamic system perfectly in tune with the demands of an early modern economy In order to understand it fully however we should differentiate the informal training system organised via a free market of indentures on the one hand and the institutionalised system of craft guilds on the other In Antwerp early modern guilds had a project of emancipating their members They didn t simply produce certain skills but through a system of quality marks defended the honour of craftsmen This is the difference with current practices By representing hands on skills as superior guilds supplied a sort of symbolic capital for workers
