

HUMAN FETAL GROWTH LAB

Complete development of somatomotors takes about 30 weeks. Somatosensory development starts at 100, differing among subjects but also from somatomotors. This increases at the same rate, same history, different time span. Development of a human body, including its own somatomotors, until the average length characteristic each stage of development. This approximate age of a fetus can be determined from its mass and length.

Other measurements: growth of the body, head, and facial measurements, including the crown-heel length. These two measurements are related to the crown-heel length. The crown-heel length of an 18-week fetus is completely different from the crown-heel length of a 24-week fetus. The crown-heel length of a 24-week fetus is completely different from the crown-heel length of a 30-week fetus. You will draw curves and graphs to summarize your data. At the end of the experiment, you will answer questions relating to your data.

Plans for the Lab:

1. Plan I: Measuring and Plotting the Development of Human Fetus.
2. Plan II: Graphing the Length of a Developing Fetus.
3. Plan III: Graphing the Mass of a Developing Fetus.
