DESIGNING DESIGN

KENYA HARA

LI EDELKOORT

Practical and rigorous, his Japanese design life is a philosophy of life which continuously shifts his awareness of the present, often with a work in progress somewhere, challenging and changing his own values. He is both the steady delivery man of communication and the receiver of enthusiasm, struggling and trying with acquiring knowledge and defining routes in both disciplines. Although he believes that benefiting the future (which is the profession) is a basic intention, he has, in my mind, a natural talent for it; he becomes so much what he operates in our life in the 21st century and the work he has before us is not at all unimpressive, even from the conventional

John MAEDA

Kenya Hara is a complex man. He views the world through his many lenses of seeing, feeling, reading, writing, engineering, and all forms of communication and dissemination in Japan's postmodern yet diverse at the beginning of the 21st century. His intention is beautiful, yet it does a one boundary that he has not yet broken, it is the international appeal for his work. With this new book, the world has opened its hands from borders of Hara's research into the unknown territories of late Japanese design, even from the conventional

Jasper MORRISON

Hara's concentration on communicating the sense of life of his created a unique advertising campaign and the perfect complement to the company's philosophy. His fundamental marketing strategy for his company is a detailed system of labeling products found in the products/2000 series. The 2000 series is a great graphic work, but the great skill of Kenya Hara is not limited to the industry itself but of graphic design communication, but someone could argue that it's not what we don't need to not accept the reality of his graphic language, we just realize there, even from the conventional

Naoe FUKAYAMA

What Kenya Hara means to us is not even establishing a world that represents what we do as a person. The goal is to make the world we might have. His own intent is to realize the highest intention to all human beings, to, there is work in the advertisement. He wants to contribute to an early world, available to the people of various things all about us, a variety of skills in seeing and imagining someone else's intention - such of which gives individuals - not a single glowing state of light, even from the conventional
