Alternative Dispute Resolution and Peace-building in Africa Ernest E. Uwazie, 2014-06-26 Conflicts in Africa have a great deal in common and striking parallels can be drawn between them at all levels Dynamics affecting the most complex war time conflicts civil unrest and other macro disputes are in play even in the smallest community conflicts The converse is also true lessons learned through community mediation for example in South Africa are applicable to the most complex and largest conflicts to be found on the continent Together the eleven chapters in this publication in addition to the prologue and epilogue suggest that a comprehensive assessment of efforts and investments in conflict resolution and peace studies in Africa since the mid 1990s is due in order to identify lessons and challenges as well as best practices Just as conflict dynamics are comparable between African conflicts whether large or small local or international so are alternative dispute resolution processes Effective approaches to resolving large scale conflicts and civil wars are effective at the community level and ineffectual techniques at the community level are just as likely to be counter productive in mediating international disputes While there may be some differences in mediating macro and micro conflicts such as the time required the need for negotiation teams and the complexities of agenda development or pre negotiations as far as the mediation process is concerned the differences are more like variations on a theme than real substantive dissimilarities This volume provides case studies of programs and policies and legislations on alternative dispute resolution and peace building and examines and proposes some new promising ideas for conflict prevention as well as maintenance of peace justice and security in Africa

Negotiating Reconciliation in Peacemaking Valerie Rosoux, Mark Anstey, 2017-11-01 This book offers a unique approach to reconciliation as a matter for negotiation bringing together two bodies of theory in order to offer insights into resolving conflicts and achieving lasting peace It argues that reconciliation should not be simply accepted as an agreed upon norm within peacemaking processes but should receive serious attention from belligerents and peace brokers seeking to end violent conflicts through negotiation The book explores different meanings the term reconciliation might hold for parties in conflict the end of overt hostilities a transformation in the quality of relations between warring groups a vehicle of accountability and punishment of human rights abusers or the means through which they might somehow acquire amnesty and as a means of atonement and to material reparation It considers what gives energy to the idea of reconciliation in a conflict situation why do belligerents become interested in settling their differences and changing their attitudes to one another Using a range of case studies and thematic discussion chapters in this book seek to tackle these tough questions from a multidisciplinary perspective Contributions to the book reveal some of the complexities of national and international reconciliation projects but particularly diverse understandings of reconciliation and how to achieve it All conflicts reflect unique dynamics aspirations and power realities It is precisely because parties in conflict differ in expectations of reconciliation outcomes that its processes should be negotiated This book is a valuable resource for both scholars and practitioners engaged in resolving conflicts and transforming fragmented relations in conflict and post conflict situations
