Governor's Office, 2005 Climate Action Planning Michael R. Boswell, Adrienne I. Greve, Tammy L. Seale, 2019-07-16 Climate change continues to impact our health and safety the economy and natural systems With climate related protections and programs under attack at the federal level it is critical for cities to address climate impacts locally Every day there are new examples of cities approaching the challenge of climate change in creative and innovative ways from rethinking transportation to greening city buildings to protecting against sea level rise Climate Action Planning is designed to help planners municipal staff and officials citizens and others working at local levels to develop and implement plans to mitigate a community's greenhouse gas emissions and increase the resilience of communities against climate change impacts This fully revised and expanded edition goes well beyond climate action plans to examine the mix of policy and planning instruments available to every community Boswell Greve and Seale also look at process and communication How does a community bring diverse voices to the table What do recent examples and research tell us about successful communication strategies Climate Action Planning brings in new examples of implemented projects to highlight what has worked and the challenges that remain A completely new chapter on vulnerability assessment will help each community to identify their greatest risks and opportunities Sections on land use and transportation have been expanded to reflect their growing contribution to greenhouse gas emissions The guidance in the book is put in context of international national and state mandates and goals Climate Action Planning is the most comprehensive book on the state of the art science and practice of local climate action planning It should be a first stop for any local government interested in addressing climate change powered home in New England he introduces readers to the pioneers who are spearheading our move toward a clean energy economy We meet the CEOs who are propelling solar power to prominence and the intrepid construction workers who scale our rooftops installing panels We encounter the engineers who are building giant utility scale projects in prime solar states like Nevada Arizona and California and the biologists who make sure wildlife is protected at those sites Warburg shows how solar energy has won surprising support across the political spectrum Prominent conservatives embrace solar power as an emblem of market freedom while environmental advocates see it as a way to reduce America s greenhouse gas emissions At the same time economic justice activists celebrate solar s potential to lift up low income communities and Native American leaders welcome the income and jobs that the industry will bring to their communities Yet solar energy has its downsides and detractors too Conservationists worry about the impact of large solar farms on protected animal species and some local citizens groups resent the encroachment of solar projects on farmland and open spaces Warburg gives voice to those at the epicenter of these conflicts and points the way to constructive solutions Harness the Sun offers a grounded persuasive vision of America s energy future It is a future fueled by clean renewable sources of power with solar at center stage Statutes of California and Digests of Measures California,2008 Energy Aware Planning Guide ,2011 Summary of ... Deason,Patricia Kanashiro,2023-01-20 The Handbook of Multi Level Climate Actions emphasizes the need for significant climate action by every capable person on the planet at multiple levels of human experience and society This includes individuals households formal and informal groups organizations communities from local to global and all levels of businesses governments and nonprofit organizations It highlights the many ways that our species can meet the climate crisis and how entities at every level of human experience are could be and should be developing and implementing climate solutions including those advancing energy efficiency renewable energy utilization and nature s ability to sequester carbon Justice in Climate Action Planning Brian Petersen,Hélène B. Ducros,2021-12-01 This edited volume examines how climate action plans engage justice at the scale of the city Recent events in the United States make the context particularly ripe for a discussion of justice in urban climate politics On the one hand the emergence of the Black Lives Matter movement George Floyd s death and the prominence of racial discrimination in the public realm have mainstreamed the notion of justice On the other hand the dire consequences of increased frequency and severity of climate events on vulnerable segments of urban populations are undeniable While some cities have been proactive about integrating justice in their climate action planning in most places an explicit and systematic link between both spheres has been lacking This book explores this interface as it seeks to understand how cities can respond to climate change in a just way and for just outcomes While resilience strategies based on development may engage historic inequities they may at the same time result in marginalizing certain populations through various processes from mismatched solutions to outright exclusion and climate gentrification By identifying how certain populations are included in or excluded from climate action planning practices the chapters in this volume draw on case studies to outline the differential outcomes of climate action in American cities also proposing a template for comparative work beyond the US The authors tackle the debate about how justice is or is not integrated in climate action plans and assess practical implications while also making theoretical and methodological contributions As it fills a gap in the literature at the intersection of justice and climate action the book produces new insights for a wide ranging audience students practitioners policy makers planners the non profit sector and scholars in geography urban planning urban studies environmental studies ecology political science or anthropology Along five axes of investigation theory resilience equity community and comparison as method the contributors offer various pathways into the intersection between urban climate action and different understandings of justice Collectively they invite a reflection that can lead to practical initiatives in climate mitigation while also advancing the theorization of social justice to account for the urban as a node where in justice plays out and can be addressed with significant results San Luis
