Public History in Global Perspective Georgina Laragy, Richard Legay, Ciaran O'Neill, Hannah K. Smyth, 2025-07-21 Where should public history sit within the matrix of global international trans national and more local histories Since its emergence in the 1970s Public History has typically been read as community oriented and more local in its applications The academic field in particular has developed along national lines and indeed we see in the many monographs edited books and journals that have emerged a distinct tendency to consider public history as understandable mostly in its relation to the nation state and its attendant mythologies The meta narratives that public history pushes against are the building blocks of national histories political military and heroic histories Conceiving of a global public history seems to have more radical potential than an international public history which arguably simply collects these national histories What would a global public history look like and how can it disrupt the field if interpreted radically This book will centre the work of scholars and professionals in the field of Public History It will offer novel reflections on postgraduate Public History learning work experience and application from recent graduates and partnered institutions A mix of theory and practice traditional and creative methodologies it demonstrates the value of integrating work experience practitioner workshops and close collaboration in Public History training

Memory in the Mekong Will Brehm, Yuto Kitamura, 2022 Is it even possible or desirable to establish a common identity across the diverse peoples of Southeast Asia

And how would a regional identity exist alongside national identity given the divergent memories of history Memory in the Mekong grapples with these questions by exploring issues of shared history national identity and schooling in the countries along Southeast Asia's Mekong River delta Cambodia Thailand Vietnam Laos and Myanmar Glasgow Lynn Abrams, Ade Kearns, Barry Hazley, Valerie Wright, 2020-04-13 In the wake of an unparalleled housing crisis at the end of the Second World War Glasgow Corporation rehoused the tens of thousands of private tenants who were living in overcrowded and unsanitary conditions in unimproved Victorian slums Adopting the designs the materials and the technologies of modernity they built into the sky developing high rise estates on vacant sites within the city and on its periphery This book uniquely focuses on the people's experience of this modern approach to housing drawing on oral histories and archival materials to reflect on the long term narrative and significance of high rise homes in the cityscape It positions them as places of identity formation intimacy and well being With discussions on interior design and consumption gender roles children the elderly privacy isolation social networks and nuisance Glasgow examines the connections between architectural design planning decisions and housing experience to offer some timely and prescient observations on the success and failure of this very modern housing solution at a moment when high flats are simultaneously denigrated in the social housing sector while being built afresh in the private sector Glasgow is aimed at an academic readership including postgraduate students scholars and researchers It will be of interest to social cultural and urban historians particularly interested in the United Kingdom
