

A.P. U.S. Government Quiz Review
Chapter 13 Congress

1. What is a filibuster? An attempt to defeat a bill or stop an action in the Senate by talking indefinitely
2. What is the closed rule? Limits the amount of time that is spent discussing a bill
3. What are two incumbency advantages? Casework, PAC's, franking
4. Describe the duties of the majority/minority leaders and whips. Floor leaders carry out decisions of the party and steer floor action to the party's benefit. Whips serve as liaisons between party leaders and members and they make sure members are present to vote
5. What is the purpose of the committee system? To divide work, allow them to work in small groups, decide which bills to work on and how to investigate and hold hearings.
6. Explain how the duties of the Speaker of the House give them power. Preside over the meeting and keep order, recognize or ignore members, interprets and apply rules, refer bills to committee, put motions to vote, name members to committees
7. How is a select committee different from a standing committee? A select committee is temporary while a standing committee is permanent. A select committee is just focusing on one matter while a standing committee has several bills before them all at once
8. What is a conference committee? Brings together House members and Senators to iron out differences in a bill before approving and sending to the President
9. What is the role of the Rules Committee? Sets rules for debate, screens bills to decide which ones to focus on, schedules bills for floor discussion, can speed up, delay or kill a bill
10. What is the role of the General accountability Office? Audits money spent by executive departments, investigates agencies and policies and makes recommendations on almost every aspect of government
11. What is the role of the Congressional Budget Office? Advises Congress on the likely economic effects of different spending programs and provides information on the costs of proposed policies
