Maintenance Planning and Scheduling Timothy C. Kister, Bruce Hawkins, 2006-05-10 This is a hands on reference guide for the maintenance or reliability engineer and plant manager As the third volume in the Life Cycle Engineering series this book takes the guiding principles of Lean Manufacturing and Maintenance and applies these concepts to everyday planning and scheduling tasks allowing engineers to keep their equipment running smoothly while decreasing downtime The authors offer invaluable advice on the effective use of work orders and schedules and how they fit into the overall maintenance plan There are not many books out there on planning and scheduling that go beyond the theory and show the engineer in a hands on way how to use planning and scheduling techniques to improve performance cut costs and extend the life of their plant machinery The only book that takes a direct look at streamlining planning and scheduling for a Lean Manufacturing Environment This book shows the engineer how to create and stick to effective schedules Gives examples and templates in the back of the book for use in day to day scheduling and calculations

Prognostics and Health Management of High-Speed Railway Traction Power Substations Zhengyou He, Sheng Lin, Ding Feng, Qi Wang, 2026-01-01 This book systematically explains the theoretical framework of Prognostics and Health Management PHM for traction power substations in high speed railways focusing on PHM concepts and development It provides an overview of fault diagnosis and prediction for these substations complemented by practical examples The integration of equipment service performance degradation patterns fault evolution processes and intelligent early warning mechanisms is discussed to conduct health assessments of traction power substations Reliability and risk assessments are conducted considering operational characteristics relay protection and multi factor integration followed by case analyses Furthermore maintenance decision making and optimization research are explored encompassing degradation modeling fault prediction risk assessment and multi attribute decision making approaches By incorporating PHM technology into high speed railway traction power substations it leverages existing monitoring data while integrating and processing multi source system information This enables timely prediction and warning of system and equipment failures aiding operators in maintaining the system health and conducting reliability assessments This ensures that the traction power supply system operates efficiently minimizing failures Corresponding maintenance strategies are formulated based on evaluation results enhancing the safe and reliable operation of the system in terms of various aspects such as reliability and economy etc Electric System
