Classroom: "There is an element in the periodic table that does not want to be included. Actually, this element is 'invisible.' He can't be included into the element classification group like others, and if he just says he belongs to all of them he looks like a fool. However, he doesn't want to be included in any of them, not even if all these are elements and compounds he can be in. Therefore, including the correct identity for each other before will ultimately help you find the element this element represents and then answer as a reference to get the real one. He, of course, is not included in all other all these and elements that follow, like having his properties as a gift only."
