Introduction

Concrete has been widely used in building construction because of its strength, durability, economy and fire resistance. It is a composite material consisting of cement, sand, aggregate and water.

The concrete is a brittle material and is weak in tension. It is usually reinforced with steel bars to provide the necessary strength and ductility.

The concrete is also susceptible to various forms of deterioration, such as carbonation, chloride attack, sulphate attack, and acid attack.

One of the most common forms of deterioration is the ingress of moisture and salts from the ground. This can lead to the formation of a damp proof course (DPC) in the concrete.

The DPC is a layer of material that prevents the moisture and salts from entering the concrete. It is usually made of a material that is impermeable to water and salts.

The DPC is usually installed in the concrete at the time of construction.
