Educational Services to Handicapped Students with Limited English Proficiency Patricia Thomas Cegelka, 1986. A product of a statewide California survey of 104 school districts and 9 county educational agencies, the report focuses on promising practices for use with handicapped children of limited English proficiency. LEP In Phase One, seven categories of promising practices or program attributes were identified: 1. first and second language development, 2. cultural considerations, 3. teacher competencies and staff development, 4. administrative interface and collaboration, 5. nonbiased assessment, 6. educational placement and programming, and 7. parent involvement. The area of promising practice most frequently identified by survey participants was nonbiased assessment. Major findings of the Phase Two survey of current educational practices included the proportional representation of LEP students in special education, frequent consideration of language problems in the assessment of LEP students, and a Spanish emphasis. The third phase involved compiling an annotated bibliography on the professional literature dealing with special education services for the culturally and/or linguistically different handicapped student. The 112 citations, which make up the bulk of this publication, are grouped according to the seven categories of promising practices. The final phase is an analysis and summary of findings for each of the seven categories. The need for the field to focus more on qualitative questions of program placement and educational delivery, as well as on ways to more meaningfully involve parents, is stressed. Appendices provide: 1. a breakdown of the components of each of the promising practices categories, and 2. a set of forms describing promising practices of various school districts. Twelve pages of references are also provided. DB
