Primer Social Media Literacy

Jane Bailey, Valerie Steeves

Primer Social Media Literacy:

eGirls, eCitizens Jane Bailey, Valerie Steeves, 2015-04-23 eGirls eCitizens is a landmark work that explores the many forces that shape girls and young women's experiences of privacy, identity, and equality in our digitally networked society. Drawing on the multi-disciplinary expertise of a remarkable team of leading Canadian and international scholars, as well as Canada's foremost digital literacy organization MediaSmarts, this collection presents the complex realities of digitized communications for girls and young women as revealed through the findings of The eGirls Project (www.egirlsproject.ca) and other important research initiatives. Aimed at moving dialogues on scholarship and policy around girls and technology away from established binaries of good vs. bad or risk vs. opportunity, these seminal contributions explore the interplay of factors that shape online environments characterized by a gendered gaze and too often punctuated by sexualized violence. Perhaps most importantly, this collection offers first-hand perspectives collected from girls and young women themselves, providing a unique window on what it is to be a girl in today's digitized society. Published in English. Digital Literacy Susan Wiesinger, Ralph Beliveau, 2016 This textbook takes a well-rounded view of the evolution from media literacy to digital literacy to help students better understand the digitally filtered world in which they live. Decolonizing Religion and Peacebuilding Atalia Omer, 2023 An investigation of what consolidating religion as a technology of peacebuilding and development does to people's accounts of their religious and cultural traditions, and why interreligious peacebuilding entrenches colonial legacies in the present. Throughout the global south, local and international organizations are frequent participants in peacebuilding projects that focus on interreligious dialogue. Yet, as Atalia Omer argues in Decolonizing Religion and Peacebuilding, the effects of their efforts are often perverse, reinforcing neocolonial practices and disempowering local religious actors. Based on empirical research of inter- and intra-religious peacebuilding practices in Kenya and the Philippines, Omer identifies two paradoxical findings: first, religious peacebuilding practices are both empowering and depoliticizing; and second, more doing of religion does not necessarily denote deeper or more critical religious literacy. Further, she shows that these religious actors generate decolonial openings, regardless of how closed or open their religious communities are. Hence, religion's occasional usefulness in peacebuilding does not necessarily mean justice-oriented outcomes. The book not only uses decolonial and intersectional prisms to expose the entrenched and ongoing colonial dynamics operative in religion and the practices of peacebuilding and development in the global South, but it also speaks to decolonial theory through stories of transformation and survival. Fake News in Context Lesley S. J. Farmer, 2020-12-17 Fake News in Context defines fake news and sets it within a historical and international context. Helping readers to become more skilled at detecting misinformation, the book also demonstrates how such knowledge can be leveraged to facilitate more effective engagement in civic education. Distinguishing between fake news and other forms of misinformation, the book explains the complete communication cycle of fake news: how and why it is created, disseminated, and accessed The book then explains the physical and psychological reasons why people believe fake news Providing generic methods for identifying fake news Farmer also explains the use of fact checking tools and automated algorithms The book then details how various literacies including news media visual information digital and data offer unique concepts and skills that can help interpret fake news Arguing that individuals and groups can respond and counter fake news which leads to civic engagement and digital citizenship the book concludes by providing strategies for instruction and tips for collaborating with librarians Including a range of international examples Fake News in Context will be of interest to teaching faculty and students of library and information science communication studies media studies politics and journalism Librarians and information professionals will also find a valuable resource in this book
