| Leaders                  | Benjamin Franklin, James Madison, John Jay, and Alexander Hamilton.  | Thomas Jefferson and James Madison instead advocated for a smaller and more decentralized government, and formed the Democratic-Republicans. Both the Democratic and the Republican Parties as we know them today are rooted in this early faction.  |

They also supported the ratification of the U.S. Constitution.  | They believed that the Constitution was a "strict" document that clearly limited the powers of the federal government. They resented Federalist monetary policies, which they believed gave advantages to the upper class. | The Republican Party of the United States has held a variety of views on foreign policy and national defense over the course of its existence. Generally speaking, it has advocated for a more militaristic foreign policy (with the exception of isolationist and libertarian elements).                                    |
| Military Policy          | The Federalist view of the military, shared by President Adams, called for there to be a strong standing army and navy, modeled after America's European counterparts, which could not only deter possible war but put the nation in a prepared position in case an unavoidable war was to break out.                      | In foreign policy, Republicans usually favor increased military spending and unilateral action. Other Republican positions include restrictions on immigration, more specifically opposition to illegal immigration, opposition to drug legalization, and support for school choice.   |
