A Guide to Scaffold Use in the Construction Industry U. S. Labor, Occupational Administration, 2012-06-25 OSHA 3150 A Guide to Scaffold Use in the Construction Industry The Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 charges the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) with protecting all working men and women across the United States To do so, the agency sets federal standards for general industry construction and shipyard employment OSHA also promotes a variety of voluntary programs that strive to form partnerships with businesses, labor, and other groups to help employers provide safer and more healthful workplaces for employees Some of the agency's voluntary initiatives include safety and health management programs, the Voluntary Protection Programs, consultation assistance, and training and education programs and grants For more information on these outreach efforts, see page 12 of this booklet The agency's recent rule, Safety Standards for Scaffolds Use in the Construction Industry, aims to protect workers using scaffolding in construction work Scaffolding hazards continue to rank high on the list of the most frequently cited standards in the construction industry Scaffold-related fatalities account for a significant number of fatalities in the construction workplace This booklet addresses some of the most common questions about OSHA's scaffold standard It is all part of the agency's effort to provide guidance to employers who need help in complying with OSHA's standards to protect the working men and women across the nation This booklet is organized in a question and answer format to highlight pertinent information that employers and employees need to know The subjects addressed in each question follow the basic organization of the standard In addition, each answer references the regulatory text where that particular information can be located These references appear at the end of each answer in boldface type An appendix also includes an alphabetical index to the standard for quick reference It is important to note that the question and answer section of this booklet simply provides an overview of the standard For compliance with all of the regulation's requirements, refer to the regulatory text or Title 29 of the Code of Federal Regulations, CFR Part 1926 Subpart L

Scaffold Safety Manual National Association of Home Builders (U.S.). Labor, Safety, and Health Services Department,1997     A Guide to Scaffold Use in the Construction Industry ,2001 On August 30 1996 OSHA issued revised standards for scaffolds The revised standard known as Safety Standards for Scaffolds Used in the Construction Industry is found in Title 29 Code of Federal Regulations CFR Part Subpart L The final rule updates the existing construction scaffold standards in Subpart L The revised standards set performance based criteria to protect employees from scaffold related hazards such as falls falling objects structural instability electrocution or overloading This final rule addresses training and various types of scaffolds as well as falling object protection ladders weather conditions aerial lifts stilts and other matters that were not previously covered by the OSHA scaffold standards In addition it allows employers more flexibility when using protective systems for workers on scaffolding The language of the rule has been simplified by eliminating duplicative and outdated provisions consolidating overlapping requirements and enhancing performance based criteria to allow employers more flexibility in compliance while still protecting employees     Construction Safety Handbook South Australia.
