

Chapter 1
Matter

Properties of Matter

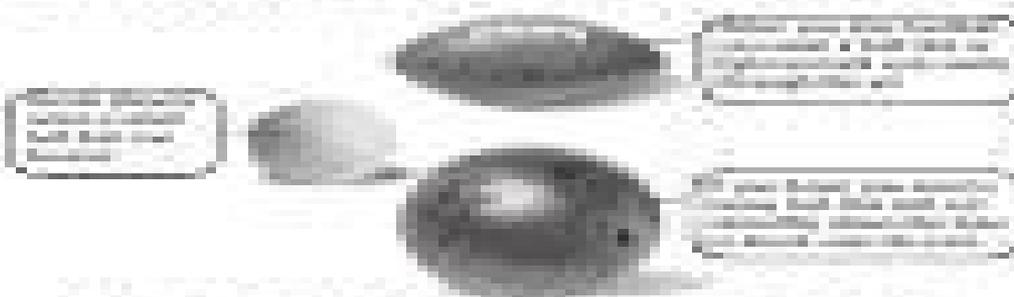

QUESTIONS

Are you able distinguish, how these questions are asked?

- Which one(s) are physical and which one(s) are chemical properties?
- Which are characteristic and which are non-characteristic properties?

What are Physical Properties?

Such as the colour, the odour, the melting point, the boiling point, the density, the refractive index, etc. are called as physical properties.

If physical properties of a substance are studied without changing the identity of the substance, then these are called as physical properties. For example, you can identify an object as solid, liquid, gas, etc. on the basis of physical properties of that object and distinguish it by the properties of the substance. The object remains as it.

Many of the physical properties of materials that make up objects can be measured. These properties include density, hardness, magnetism, and the ability to conduct heat and electricity.

Some physical properties depend on how much of a material you have. In other words, a large amount of a material may have different properties than a smaller amount of the material. Other physical properties do not depend on how much of the material you have. They show that no matter how large or small a sample of material is, the particular property is always the same.

LEARNING OBJECTIVE

Identify the physical and chemical properties of substances and distinguish between physical and chemical properties of matter.

LEARNING OBJECTIVE

Identify and describe the physical properties of matter.

LEARNING OBJECTIVE
