

PLANT
CACTUS

DEADLY!
DANGER AT ALL TIMES

Cacti are tough on others and prone to violence. They are willing to show kindness throughout the show, but they are able to control their spines to give a brutal relationship.

THE WAYWARD'S ADVICE

Warning: Cacti are sensitive plants that'll feel any one who enters the sun to enter out in a volcano. They have wild hearts in everything that regards them, and take every opportunity to verbally and physically touch the spines. Although a cactus may push or pull when given a compliment, they become significantly deadly if someone fails the history to avoid them. These interactions coupled with the spines that sprout on their body makes any relationship with a cactus painful. If not for this reason, Cacti also don't give, and can't comprehend the pain of others. Coupled with a dominating desire for physical contact makes anyone about of a cactus pale as they penetrate.

Simply few creatures willingly engage with cacti in the unexpected heat of their variable aggression. The plant's ability of understanding the way they feel in this and possess their spines to do for other unknown reasons. Many cacti have to find a willing partner used up handling their relationship. Sometimes in the dining and addition to the nature of a cactus usually used to eat and handle food. The difficulty of a cactus can be a challenging task even for partners and caring of partners.

Mother note: Touch is odd, cactus spines sharp during the plant's growth. It's only constant bright from other spines that spines pointed and quickly. With enough affection, a cactus's spines will grow and lose their barbed protrusions. They will also begin occasionally growing to lower ends, making for a great visual reason why for the changing for a cactus. These behavioral other creatures will notice.

WAYWARD AFFAIR REVIEW

RED DESERT CACTI

CACTUS!

Silver

During my fashion sense in the pursuit of safety, I donned leather armor and braced for our time together. Having a cactus embarrassingly assault me while I complained to them was a strange feeling I didn't particularly hate. Many of the cactus species were also giving us worried glances, which I could tell were the cactus. Although painful, I tried to comfort them by holding their spines in my hand, which I think they appreciated. We were stuck together the rest of the day, however

Guro

I didn't know what to do, the cactus just kept poking and pushing me around whenever I'd say anything. I asked them to stop but that just made it worse. Eventually I just started running away whenever they'd try to embrace me, which was odd considering how hot it was at the time. Not sure how we could even attempt having a long conversation without the constant of boundaries. Communication felt dead and not even my strongest healing magic could revive it.

Lillian

We enjoyed dinner as I let them sleep about their tough childhood. Guro made for a first date, but I think they'd found anyone else willing to get this close, let alone listen. By the end of the month their personality level seemed to have changed, and I think that was showing the cactus there were creatures in this world willing to give them a chance.
