

CHAPTER ANALYSIS

PART ONE-WALKING

Chapter 1

1. Munira had come from a vigil on the mountain when the police come for him, saying he is wanted at the Ilmorog police station for questioning about recent murders.
2. Abdulla is also approached, and he is locked in a cell at the station.
3. Wanjia is at the hospital and a doctor says the police cannot see her because she is delirious.
4. Kaaraga is asleep when the police come and bring him to the station. People gather outside, thinking he is in trouble for last night's decision to strike, but the police say it is about murder.
5. The headline reads that Mzigo, Chui, and Kimeria, African directors of the Theng'eta Breweries and Enterprises Ltd., were burnt to death last night, and murder is suspected.

Chapter 2

1. Twelve years ago, Munira came to Ilmorog to teach, and rumours surrounded him. Why would anyone come here to teach shepherd boys? Was he crazed? Isn't he too old?

One mother, Wambui, came to him and asked why he has come here. All the young men and women usually leave the village, so has he come to fetch the remaining ones? Munira did not reply but sneezed loudly and she fled in fright.

Abdulla and his donkey were also new to Ilmorog, as well as the child Joseph. Abdulla opened a shop, which surprised everyone, and people came and looked at him and his stump leg and donkey. There, some of the respected old men talked to Munira. They were prosperous peasants, though the region had small holdings and poor implements. Abdulla came to Munira's rescue and asked about the school.

The old men reported their findings on Munira to Nyakinyua, a respected old woman, concluding he was all right. This did not mean Munira found it easy to fit in, as the people were wary of strangers and strange things. He told himself to remember why he came here, but he tried to avoid the thought of working in Limuru under the shadow of his father's success.

Munira visited Mzigo, the Education Officer, who asked how the school was going. Munira asked for more help, and to his surprise, Mzigo agreed and said he wants to see the school grow.
