There will be 8 3 billion human beings on Earth by 2030 and the more the better We have the opportunity to create a world of expansive megacities including one around old London Doing so will advance the art science and processes of manufacturing But to deploy those abilities we must shrug off the dogma of sustainability that insists only small can be beautiful Humanity has come a long way since the first modular mega structure was built at Ur on land that is now Iraq There four millennia ago and by hand the Sumerians built a mud brick ziggurat to their Gods Today the green deities of Nature we have invented for ourselves are worshipped with humility Eco zealots argue against the mechanised megaforming of landscape and the modularised production of megastructures The guest editors Jonathan Schwinge and Ian Abley of the London based research organisation audacity call for development on a bold scale They argue that by rapidly super sizing the built environment society is not made vulnerable to natural or man made hazards and that design innovation surpasses bio mimicry Designers can learn from materials scientists working at the smallest of scales and from systems manufacturers with ambitions at the largest This issue calls for creative thinking about typologies and topologies and considers what that also means for Africa China and Russia Megacities everywhere demand integration of global systems of transport utilities and IT in gigantic structures constantly upgraded scraping both the sky and the ground outward into the sea      Official Gazette of the United States Patent Office United States.
