The contributors explore the nature of available data on which current policies are premised: marriage patterns, the role of the family in agriculture, the changing roles and status of women, the transformations generated by mass migration, the strains and tensions wrought by structural adjustment programmes, and the functioning of family law. Throughout the book, it makes clear the importance of the family to the development process. The contributors call on development strategists to see the family as a dynamic source of change, as much as the recipient of it, as such, this book is
